Administration Pledged to Material Reduction in Tax Rates

WOULD CUT PUBLIC DEBT

President Fails to Decide Policy in Regard to Huge Surplus

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Copyright 1925 by the Post Pub. Co. Swampscott, Mass. — Talks which President Coolidge has had with Senator Curtis of Kansas, Republican leader of the senate, his house guest here, have not yet developed a definite policy on the all-important point of what share of the surplus will be applied to the retirement of the public debt and what share will be used as a basis for a reduction in tax rates.

For several weeks it has been apparent to the president and his advisers that the surplus itself would be in excess of $300,000,000 and Senator Curtis added by the significant observation that certain economies in connection with the reorganization of government departments might possibly bring this surplus up to the half billion mark. But the gratification over the size of the surplus has been tempered somewhat by the anxiety over the correct policy that shall be adopted in making the best use of the surplus.

PEOPLE WANT TAX CUT

The popular demand for a tax cut is a fact which the Coolidge administration is pledged to material reduction in rates, the fiscal experts, including Secretary Mellon, are known to be anxious to pay off as much as possible on the public debt. Indeed, if the principal is reduced the interest charges which are of course borne by the significant observation that certain economies in connection with the reorganization of government departments might possibly bring this surplus up to the half billion mark. But the gratification over the size of the surplus has been tempered somewhat by the anxiety over the correct policy that shall be adopted in making the best use of the surplus.

If the reduction in interest payments since the war amounts to a yearly average of $250,000,000, the size of the saving can be estimated approximately by multiplying by the number of years the interest would otherwise have been paid. Some people, for instance, who have advocated distributing war costs on succeeding generations have said that for ten years at least no large payments should be made on the public debt, but this would have meant ten times $250,000,000 or two and a half billion dollars, of interest that would have had to be paid in the ten-year period out of taxes collected from the American people.

PROBLEM GOES DEEPER

The problem really is not merely what shall be done with the surplus this year but once the precedent is established and taxes are reduced to a certain basis, the administration feels it would be politically fatal to run a deficit in succeeding years and compel a return to higher rates of taxation. An administration which

OIL TANKER RAMS WIND JAMMER OF RUM ROW ARMADA

New York — A three masted schooner believed to be one of the few remaining vessels in Rum Row, was rammed by the oil tanker Edward Luckenbach early Thursday but radio messages Thursday morning indicated she was still afloat.

Earlier messages from the Luckenbach said the schooner seemed to sink rapidly after the collision and that search for her in the low visibility revealed nothing. Later, however, the Independent Wireless Telephone Co., picked up messages from a steamer whose radio operator said she was the "Bossum," saying she was standing by the schooner, whose captain refused aid. The collision occurred 16 miles south of Ambrose Lightship. The Edward Luckenbach, an 8,000-ton vessel, sailed from New York Wednesday night for Los Angeles and San Francisco. She reported only slight damage above the water line.

Professor of Stevens Point Normal Turns Up in Edinburgh

By Associated Press

Edinburgh, Scotland—Professor Joseph Victor Collins, of Stevens Point was returning to London Thursday still unable to see why the police forces of England and Scotland and scores of newspaper sleuths should have been so excited about his visit to the north to attend the world education conference.

Prof. Collins' first intimation that his wife, in London, did not know where he was, came Wednesday afternoon when a friend whom he met on an Edinburgh street informed him that the police were searching for him on the theory that he had been the victim of London footpads.

The professor explained he left London earlier than he had planned and informed his wife by a postcard mailed at King's Cross station. He spent Tuesday and Wednesday night seeing and he only attended the conference informally and did not learn of the extensive search being made for him.

Want Less Legislation From Labor Officials

Lake Geneva—Officials of the Wisconsin State Federation of Labor should confine their legislative activities to intensive work on a smaller number of bills and these must have a direct appeal to the cause of labor, a resolution sponsored by J. F. Frederick, Milwaukee, and introduced in the annual meeting of the federation says. Appearance of labor representatives before legislative committees on many bills outside the scope of labor's legitimate field has a tendency to dissipate the strength of the labor cause by making it impossible for officers to give proper thought, time and publicity to essential labor bills, the resolution states. It also tends to weaken the influence of the individual representatives before committees. Eli Rasmussen, Manitowoc, a delegate, introduced a resolution calling

SUIT AIMS TO PUT EVOLUTION IN U. S. COURT

Defense Counsel Will Seek to Nip Wittner's Attempt in Bud

By Associated Press

Washington, D. C. — Legal forces representing the City of Washington Thursday set themselves to the task of nipping in the bud any exposition in court of theories of evolution as contrasted with the Bible teaching, such as was held at Dayton, Tenn.

Corporation Counsel Frances H. Stephens on whose shoulders will fall the duty of defending school officials against the court attack of Loren H. Wittner, declared Thursday he had already found Wittner's complaint full of technical flaws.

In going to court to stop payment of teachers' salaries on the ground that they were violating a provision of last year's District of Columbia appropriation bill against the teaching of "disrespect for the holy Bible" Wittner seeks to throw the whole issue of scientific instruction in schools before the federal courts.

The corporation counsel said, however, that he would try to block the proceedings. In the initial stage, despite the fact that such a course would leave opportunity for a new action. In the meanwhile, however, he expressed the belief that congress would either remove the clause under which the action was brought, or at least open the question to debate and more deliberate action.

WOULD BROADEN SCHOOLS

In making clear that he was attacking from the "evolution side" a provision of the current District of Columbia appropriation bill, barring payment of salaries to any public school officials here who teach or permit the teaching of "disrespect for the holy Bible," Wittner said the purpose of his action was "to make possible the teaching of all theory and fact in the schools." He and his attorneys believe the injunction proceedings brought Wednesday against pay officers in the district and federal government to prevent further payment of certain salaries will open the way to a constitutional test of the question of teaching evolution in a manner that the proceedings in the Dayton, Tenn., case did not permit.

"Congress is trying to stifle education," Wittner said. "The difference between the Scopes trial and the present case is just this: in the Scopes trial the issue was whether the state legislature should prescribe the curriculum in the schools. Here congress says that all curriculum must be narrowed to a point where it will agree with the insane ideas of a people of 2,000 years ago. Congress simply is glorifying ignorance."

VIOLATES CONSTITUTION

On the question of the constitutionality of the clause involved, which was inserted as rider to the appropriation bill and sponsored by Representative Sumners, Republican, of Washington, Frances H. Stevens, corporation counsel of the District, who will defend the district officials in the suit, expressed the "off-hand" opinion that it was in conflict with the first amendment to the constitution.

"The provision in question," he added, "seems to me to be an indirect way of legislating an 'establishment of religion' and my impression is that congress has no right to enact it."

Madison—The silence in political circles here was unbroken Thursday, although the expected conference between Governor Blaine and Robert La Follette Jr., had taken place.

Mr. La Follette declined to comment on his talk with the governor in the latter's office Wednesday. He explained his silence by saying that "events must take their course." No statement was available from the governor's office.

Congressman J. D. Beck, Viroqua, is in Madison and had a conference with Governor Blaine following that from Mr. La Follette and the executive.

Mrs. La Follette and her son, Philip, district attorney of Dane co., returned Thursday from Washington, where they have been settling affairs.

POLES KILL SOVIET OFFICER ON BORDER

Warsaw, Poland — Another fatal shooting on the Russo-Polish border was reported Thursday. A bolshevik officer tried to persuade a Polish patrol to adopt bolshevism and taking the silence of the Poles as an agreement, he crossed the line, when the Poles killed him. Growing anxious about the officer the bolshevik unit passed over the frontier and a fight developed. The Poles being less numerous, withdrew, while the Russians returned to their side of the frontier with the body of the officer.

Scott Hangs On Friday Unless Brother Comes

By Associated Press

Chicago—On the slender thread of remote possibility hangs the chance of Russell Scott to escape death, awaiting him on the gallows at sunrise Friday.

This possibility depends on a hearing for clemency which his attorneys insist they have arranged with Governor Small and the last minute appearance of Robert, his brother, indicted with him but never found.

Scott says Robert was the real slayer of Joseph Maurer, a drug clerk, in his up a year ago. A telegram, signed with Robert's name and attested as a hoax, caused Governor Small to grant a week's reprieve six hours before the time set for Russell's execution last Friday.

"No eleven hour circumstances will haunt the execution this time," is the only public indication from the governor made in a letter from his secretary to Windsor, Ont. friends of Scott working to save him.

LAWYERS HOPEFUL

But his attorneys are hopeful. They will ask for up to 9 days stay to develop new evidence.

His spirits, sinking as the time draws near for his execution, Scott thinks only the return of his brother can save him. His wife made a plea Wednesday night over the radio to Robert "in the hearing of my voice" to come back, and call on any one who might know where he is to send him.

Appeals to the governor and to President Coolidge continued to pour in a steady stream. The president has referred them all to the attorney general and declined to take action, regarding the case as beyond his jurisdiction.

Scott's new attorneys, Charles W. Bidwell and Arthur Kettles announced that unless plans were changed they would take an 11 o'clock train for Springfield in an effort to obtain action by Governor Small. They said they were retained by an old client who sympathized with Scott. They had new evidence, they asserted, which they believed would convince the governor that Robert, not Russell Scott killed Maurer.

PUBLIC WILLING TO HELP SPEND FORTUNE

By Associated Press

New York — Leopold Schupp, 83 year old philanthropist, sought success Thursday in his country home in New Canaan, Conn., from a deluge of suggestions as to how to spend his money for benevolence.

On the heels of his appeal to the public to advise him how to do good with his millions came an avalanche of mail, telegrams and personal appeals. Three thousand letters bulged his correspondence Wednesday. The mass of the letters were frantic pleas for funds and pleas for jobs. Few offered concrete suggestions. The appeals for aid ranged from the romantic request of a woman, fat and forty, for $4,000 to get a husband, to the request of a man for endowment of a "refuge for poor souls about to commit suicide."

Some of the few altruistic suggestions pertained to plans for the aid of boys and girls, a subject close to Mr. Schupp's heart. He already has established a $2,500,000 fund to help young boys.

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.—Anxiety over the whereabouts of "Louie the Spider," star witness for the state in the trial of two truck drivers and an automobile salesman accused of conspiring to kidnap Mary Pickford, Thursday helped to relieve after a fashion the dearth of dramatic tensions which has marked proceedings since the opening of the case in superior court Wednesday.

Prosecution attorneys Wednesday night predicted the "spider" whose real name is Louis Geck, would be on hand when needed to tell how he "sat in" on the kidnapping confessions of the three defendants, Charles Stevens, Claude Holcomb and Adrian Wood.

Fairbanks was in court and heard the reading of the indictment charging the defendants with conspiring to kidnap "Mary Fairbanks," also known as Mary Pickford, a human being but Mary herself disappointed the movie fan spectators by failing to appear.

ALLIES HOPEFUL AFTER GERMANY SENDS ANSWER

London — Germany's reply to France's note outlining the observations of the allies with respect to the German security pact proposals, has been thoroughly studied by the foreign department experts of the three countries directly concerned—Great Britain, France and Belgium.

London now is awaiting a communication which it is learned that M. Briand, the French foreign minister, has sent to the French ambassador in London, outlining the deductions made by France after a careful examination by the foreign office.

Despite all criticisms of the German reply, it cannot be doubted that the impression created is, on the whole favorable. Even in France, where many of the press comments have been written in a more or less ironical tone, there is an admission that Germany's attitude is conciliatory and hope for a satisfactory outcome is entertained.

Rancher Is Killed, Doctor Captured by Chinese in Bandit Raid

By Associated Press

Peking—Morgan Palmer, an American, has been killed by bandits at his ranch on the Sungari river, near Harbin. Dr. Howard, an eye specialist attached to the Rockefeller hospital was captured at the same time.

Consular advices from Kalgan state that Palmer was killed on July 20 while defending his property against bandits.

Mr. Palmer and his mother, Dr. Howard and his son James, and an American trader named Baldwin of Kalgan, Chihli province, together with his wife and children were visiting Palmer's ranch which is in the Mongolian Province of Kirin, when the attack was made.

The consular advices say that Dr. Howard Wednesday night was still in captivity. The others are "safe for the present" but their whereabouts is not known. The American consul at Mukden, Samuel Sokobin, has gone to see the military governor of Kirin in an effort to effect the release of Dr. Howard.

The Rockefeller hospital has been advised that Dr. Howard's son James is safe on a customs launch at Euchen.

Mr. Palmer was connected with the salt administration in Peking, but retired some time ago to conduct an experimental farm.

PLAN MEMORIAL BODY TO HONOR LAFOLLETTE

By Associated Press

Madison—Formation of a national memorial association whose purpose would be to perpetuate the memory of the late Senator Robert M. La Follette, was favored at a meeting in the state senate chamber Wednesday night, called for the purpose of discussing plans for making the La Follette home into a memorial park similar to Mount Vernon.

A committee, composed of Mrs. C. A. Harper, Edward Nordman, and E. B. Ballard, was appointed to consult with the La Follette family on the question of memorializing the old homestead. The committee was empowered to call another meeting soon, to which members of the Wisconsin Historical society and various patriotic organizations would be invited.

Post-Crescent Attains Record In Circulation

"The largest circulation of any newspaper printed in any city of less than 20,000 population (1920 census) in the United States."

The distinction which the Appleton Post-Crescent has attained in the few years since it began the spectacular growth which merited the assertion that it is "the fastest growing daily newspaper in Wisconsin."

The assertion that the Appleton Post-Crescent, with a net paid circulation for the three months ended March 31, 1925, of 12,623, has a larger circulation than any other daily paper printed in any city of less than 20,000 population in the United States, is based on a careful study of the circulation figures of all newspapers printed in this country.

The survey revealed that there are 165 newspapers printed in the 117 cities of between 15,000 and 20,000 population in the United States and that the Post-Crescent has the largest circulation of any. The study also revealed that the Post-Crescent's circulation is larger than the distribution on the vast majority of news-

JAIL, CHAPEL AND MORGUE PART OF NEW UNION DEPOT

Chicago—The new $60,000,000 Chicago Union station, covering 35 acres and used by four railroads was formally opened, six weeks after some of its facilities had begun to function.

Ranking with the Grand Central and Pennsylvania stations in New York as the largest railway depots in the country, the station has accommodations for 300 trains daily, for 50,000 passengers and 400 tons of baggage.

The main waiting room is so large that three regulation size baseball diamonds could be laid in it. The terminal has three things which no other station has ever had, a jail for transient prisoners, a chapel and a morgue for the dead and a hospital for the sick.

The owners of the station are the Pennsylvania railroad, the Chicago Burlington and Quincy and the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul. The Chicago and Alton is a tenant.

Back of the words "Closed for one or two days" tacked Thursday morning on the door of the American Good Food restaurant, 111 N. Onondaga, is the story of a heated quarrel during the busy supper hour Wednesday evening which put one of the proprietors, Charles Williams, in the hospital with a fractured skull, and the other partner, Nick Gostas, behind the bars for administering the blow with a cleaver.

Williams was in a favorable condition for recovery Thursday at St. Elizabeth hospital. Gostas is sorry for his violence during a fit of passion and awaits a hearing when municipal court reopens on the charge of assault with a deadly weapon. He kept the police force busy for five hours trying to find him but on advice of a cousin at Kimberly gave him up at the station at 11:30 Wednesday night.

IDENTITIES GOSTAS

Thursday morning Gostas was taken to the hospital by Chief George T. Prim and Williams was asked to identify him as the man who attacked him. Williams declared Gostas hit him. When Gostas entered the hospital Gostas saw his business partner with his head bandaged. He was touched with remorse and wept. Williams had nothing to say except to answer the questions put by the police.

Williams and Gostas formed a partnership about two months ago and opened a restaurant in the building formerly occupied by Carroll music store. Gostas, whose real name is Nick Gostantunkopolos, told the police he had invested $1,700 in the enterprise. Williams had charge of the diningroom and Gostas worked in the kitchen.

FREQUENT QUARRELS

Disagreements were frequent, it is said, and within the last few days they hinged on the amount of money the partners should withdraw from the business. Gostas says he has a wife and children in Greece and was anxious to establish himself so he could bring them to America. He was said to be dissatisfied with the amount which Williams turned over to him out of the earnings. The two men quarreled rather heatedly Wednesday afternoon, the police learned, but the press of duties when the supper hour came caused the arguments to subside.

Shortly after 6:30 Williams had occasion to go to the kitchen for something or other and the quarrel with Gostas broke out afresh. The men grew heated and in a fit of anger Gostas is said to have seized a cleaver and struck Williams on the head. The cleaver had a thick steel blade about eight inches long and four inches wide. Gostas swung on the floor and Gostas fell on his back. No one noticed where he went. Mrs. Charles Williams was in the diningroom, heard her husband's exclamations and went to the kitchen to find him lying there bleeding profusely from the head. She summoned the police, bandaged the man's head with towels and he was conveyed to St. Elizabeth hospital in the police ambulance.

SKULL FRACTURED

Williams had a gash three and a half inches long on the right side of his head where the cleaver struck him. The police are of the impression that the blow was administered with the side of the blade rather than the sharp edge, as there seemed to be no blood on the knife edge. An X-ray picture was taken of the head, however, and it showed a ragged fracture of the skull. The attending physician believes this could not have been done with a blow by the flat side of the cleaver and that only a sharp-edged instrument could accomplish this. It is believed, however, that the cleaver struck him at an angle such that the blade did not cut into the head very far.

All visible police officers were summoned as soon as it was learned that Gostas had fled and a search was begun. A net was spread so that he could not leave the city and his rooming place on N. Morrison-st was guarded by a policeman.

Police learned that he had a friend at Combined Locks and a hurried trip was made there but nobody had seen him in the village. The officers returned here and gained a new cleaver.

FEW PEDDLERS APPLY TO CITY FOR LICENSES

Only Two Transient Merchants Have Secured Permits So Far This Year

Peddling and hawking may soon be numbered among the lost arts. The trade certainly cannot be a very lucrative one in Appleton, at least, judged from the dwindling number of its devotees.

Time was when the country was overrun with peddlers, hucksters, canvassers of all kinds. Housewives dreaded the step of vendors on their front or rear porches, and the children indoors, fearful of the peddler's eyes from behind the window, dropped their eyes from the retreating transient until he was out of sight.

Today there are but few house-to-house salesmen in this locality. Strict laws imposing heavy licenses make the trade less inviting, and possibly prosperous times make it less necessary.

A record is kept in the city hall of those peddlers who dispose of their wares under the cloak of the law. According to E. L. Williams, city clerk, there have been but two licenses granted this year. Last year five peddlers were licensed.

SOME DODGE FEES
It is admitted that this does not represent the actual number of peddlers in the community. While some desiring protection make it a point to see the clerk about a license as soon as they enter a city, others do not trouble about it until they are intercepted by the police and are obliged to pay the clerk a visit.

The usual excuse is, "I didn't know I needed a license," an excuse they very likely repeated a good many times in other cities. Some produce a state license and pretend to believe that this gives them carte blanche to sell wherever they please.

Not every vendor who appears at the window of the city clerk gets what he asks for. The city government never has been in a welcoming mood for peddlers. The city council reserves the right to reject any and all applications, and makes frequent use of this prerogative. The clerk knowing the attitude of the council does not encourage the applicant for a license. Many of them, especially agents for patent medicines, furs and other articles, are sent away. Where it is apparent that the vendor is in bad straits and deserving of a license, no delay is lost in giving him one, and instead of submitting the application to the council, the clerk asks the mayor, chief of police and chairman of the police and license committee to act on the application.

CAUSE LITTLE TROUBLE
According to Chief George T. Prim, police have very little trouble with peddlers. Although there is a law imposing a fine for failure to procure a license, police seldom have had occasion to enforce it. The fine is from $5 to $15 with jail sentence of 5 to 15 days in case of default. Originally the city council maintained a scale of license fees that conformed to that established by the state, which was $75 a year for a peddler using a two-horse vehicle or automobile, $45 for a peddler with a one-horse vehicle, $30 for a peddler with a push cart and $20 for peddling from a basket or case.

According to a wish of retail merchants identified with the chamber of commerce, the council two years ago raised the license fees to a maximum of $15 a day for the first classification, $10 a day for the second, $5 a day for the third and $3 a day for the fourth. The fee for transient merchants is $20 a day.

MAY REDUCE RATES
City officials are at liberty to reduce the rates for short terms. It so happens that the city licensed two soap peddlers last year at $5 each for nine days work, an advertising distributor at $5 for one day's work, a fruit peddler at $15 for one month's work and another peddler at $3 for three days' work, which netted the city the none too fabulous sum of $37 for the year.

The city has adopted the policy of discouraging transient vendors who pay no taxes to the city, and protecting the established merchant who does pay taxes. No license is required of farmers who peddle their own produce, or of vendors who manufacture their own products, or of drummers who canvass the mercantile houses and business offices.

Solicitors who sell their wares from samples or take orders for future delivery do not come under the classification of peddlers. There is a provision in the city ordinances requiring solicitors to pay a license fee of $50 a year, but it is regarded as impossible of enforcement. Likewise the city authorities have been inclined to be lenient with small boys peddling papers and magazines, as long as they turn in their earnings at home. Under the state law no boy under 12 may sell papers and boys between 12 and 17 are required to have permits to do so.

MAKE NEW RULE ON MAIL FOR GERMANY

Articles subject to custom duties may now be sent to Germany by regular letter mail, according to an announcement made by Paul Henderson, second assistant postmaster general, to the Appleton postoffice. All such articles must bear a green label on the envelope or wrapper which states that the article is dutiable, tells the nature of the merchandise, and the weight and value. The label must be at least two and two-fifths by one and one-fifth inches in size. The announcement adds that dutiable articles prepaid at the letter rate must not contain any of those articles prohibited in the regular or parcel post mails to Germany.

Making Money Getting To Be Big Problem For U. S.

Washington — Money's money. It seems as if folk would be glad to take all of any kind—any good kind—they can get.

Yet federal reserve bank representatives from all parts of the country told Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Dewey, recently, that they don't believe his attempt to popularize $2 bills will succeed. They reminded him of his failure to get silver cartwheels back into circulation.

"Yes," argued Dewey, "but there was some sense in that. Cartwheels really are pretty heavy to lug around. This prejudice against $2 bills is so silly."

"No sillier than a prejudice against Friday the 13th," rejoined the bankers. Still, they promised to try.

The country's tremendous demand for paper currency has the bureau of engraving and printing simply run ragged. Working overtime, it can't turn the stuff out fast enough. Dewey's idea is to make people use bigger bills, so they won't need so many.

"I'll save a bill," is his reasoning, "every time I get a 'two' accepted in place of two 'ones'."

And so he will, but can he get enough "twos" accepted to make the saving amount to much?

Some more suggestions were offered:
1. Enlargement of the government's money-making plant.
2. Bills about the size of cigar store coupons, such as many countries get along with. They'd save raw material and fit into pocketbooks flat, avoiding the creasing, musing and wadding up, which wear them out so fast now.

3. More durable bills—tougher paper, to make them last longer.
The trouble with all these schemes is that they take time and the engraving and printing bureau's emergency is right now. It's already behind with its work and the demand is piling up.

"Something's got to be done, and 'pronto,' or there'll be a paper money famine throughout the land."

Population's trend from the farms cityward doesn't worry Secretary of Agriculture Jardine a bit. Or puzzle him, either.

"There's no getting away from it,"

STILL CHANCE TO REGISTER AT H. S.

Fifty Students Are Signed Up for Work Within Last Few Weeks

At least 50 students registered for next year's courses at the high school during the last three weeks it was said at the high school office this week. The new registrants are those who did not register last spring those who wished to change their courses, or those who are entering Appleton high school from other cities and other schools.

Students who have not registered for their next years work up to the present time should do so within the next week, as the new high school text books will be ordered in a week, and it will be necessary to have the number of students registered in each course so that the proper number of texts may be ordered.

Seven students are entering Appleton high school from other high schools, and three or four students recently registered are entering Appleton high school from the vocational school. H. F. Helble, principal of the high school, has announced that he will make evening appointments with students who are unable to come during the day because they are working. These are also a few who have not registered yet because of illness, or because they have been away from town.

INTERLAKE MILL STARTS WORK ON SETTLING BASIN

New Structure Will Clear Almost 6,000,000 Gallons of Water Daily

Work on a new settling or sedimentary basin which will treat 4,000 gallons of water per minute or between 5,000,000 and 6,000,000 per day has been started at the Interlake Pulp and Paper Co. The entire project will cost $35,000. About 40 workmen are excavating and handling concrete and every effort will be made to complete the job by Sept. 1. Orbison and Orbison of Appleton, are the consulting engineers, and Ray Kittel, construction engineer of the Consolidated Waterpower and Paper Co., Wisconsin Rapids, has charge of the work.

The basin will be a concrete structure, 40 feet wide, 16 feet deep and 240 feet long with a headhouse 40 feet wide, 16 feet high and 40 feet long at one end. In the headhouse the raw water will be given chemical treatment, after which it will be churned by mixing pumps and sent into the feeding machines. The new structure will be located east of the mill, between the present machine room and the power canal. The old store room has been torn down to make room for the new project and is now located in the machine shop. The company may build a complete filter plant in the near future, officers announce.

Washington has been having some freak weather here lately that interests the meteorological sharks a lot. It always has been a great place for two or three brisk, highly-localized thunderstorms in the course of many of its hot days, but never, so far as anybody can remember, of so extra-super-localized a type as this season.

A heavy shower that you can walk out in a few minutes—that is to say, walk from where the storm is to where it isn't—can fairly be described as kinda queer. Railroad trains run into and out of storms, of course, but for pedestrians to hoof it in and out of one is a bit unusual.

Yes sir, there was a baby cloudburst here one day recently and bone dry pavements less than a dozen blocks away, at the same time.

If it keeps on the weather department will have to make its Washington forecasts by the city ward.

Finish Spraying
Farmers of Outagamie county who are members of the county spraying ring are putting the final touches on their orchards and trees for the year, according to R. A. Amundson, county agricultural agent. The late spray is for the purpose of destroying worms, moths and scabs which remain on the trees.

5 ARRESTS FOR VIOLATION OF STATE DRY LAW

State Officers Show Little Activity Here in Last Six Months

Only five cases of violation of prohibition laws were handled by state prohibition officers in Outagamie county during the first six months of 1925, according to reports recently compiled. Fines totaling $350 have been imposed on the violators while two cases still are pending. More than 600 cases have been handled in the entire state in the six months. Jail sentences totaling 134½ months have been meted out and fines amounting to $51,200 have been assessed. Over 400 of the cases still are pending. A total of 49 cases were dismissed and 6 alleged violators were acquitted. The report does not include the number of raids, inspections, investigations, special work or attendances in court by the deputies.

Two of the neighboring counties have spent a very busy six-months with the prohibition violators, the reports show. Brown-co had 36 arrests, 10 of which are pending sentence. Fines of $4,350 were meted out to the offenders and 5 months of jail sentences also are on the books for the offenses. Shawano-co with 11 cases, assessed fines totaling $400 and 7 cases still are pending. Three other neighboring counties, Waupaca, Winnebago and Calumet, have records much nearer Outagamie. Waupaca-co had 7 violations, 2 of which are pending. No fines have been imposed but jail sentences have been given out totaling 9 months. Winnebago-co had 4 arrests all of which are pending sentence. Calumet also had 4, 2 of which still are pending. Fines for the other 2 totaled $600.

MENTOR RESIGNS FROM FACULTY

Miss Christine Dorr Accepts Appointment at Trade School at Racine

Miss Christine Dorr, instructor in the home economics department of Appleton vocational school for the last six years, has resigned to accept a position as head of the home economics department at the Racine vocational school. Miss Dorr, besides her teaching work at the local institution, was one of the leaders of girls' work in the city. Her departure will be a loss to the school and Appleton's girlhood, according to H. H. Hellig, director of the institution. Miss Dorr is a sister of O. J. Dorr, head of the Fond du Lac vocational school, and a former local teacher. A number of candidates all of whom are graduates of the University of Wisconsin and Stout Institute at Menomonie, are being considered for the vacancy, Mr. Hellig said.

DE LAIR'S CAFE IS TO PASS OUT OF EXISTENCE

August 15 will mark the closing of one of the most famous eating houses of the state when DeLair's cafe, known for almost twenty years as one of the show-places of Green Bay, will discontinue business, according to an announcement of Mrs. Margaret DeLair. The J. C. Penny Co., one of whose stores is located in Appleton has secured a ten-year lease on both floors and will move in on Sept. 1.

The restaurant was started in the same location which it now occupies 19 years ago by George DeLair. An extensive advertising campaign in which the slogans, "the cafe of a thousand dishes" and "Green Bay's best-known restaurant" played an important part helped gain it its popularity. Excellent service, meals and entertainment drew parties from all parts of the state and special parties were formed to drive to the cafe from distant points.

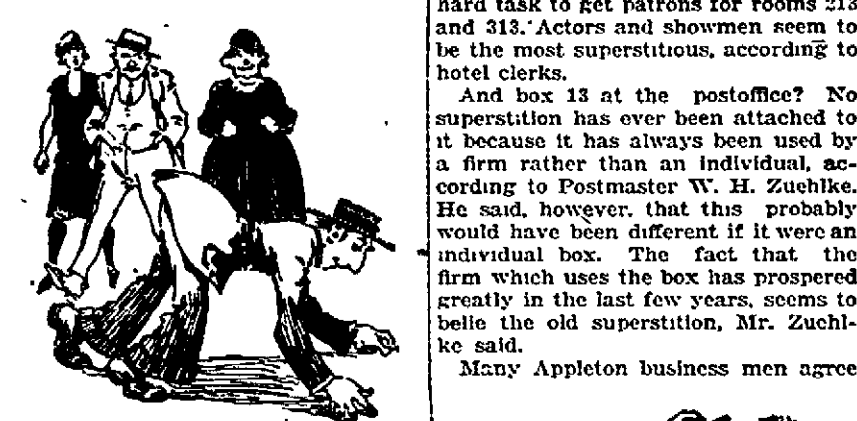

Mrs. DeLair has managed the restaurant since the death of her husband a year ago, but she has decided to retire, although she may re-enter the business next year. Business will be suspended Aug. 16, allowing two weeks for the numerous changes of the Penny Co. These will include the remodeling of the upper floor and a new front.

Black Cats And Figure 13 Are Pet Superstitions Here

"Whew! That was a narrow escape!" declared a prominent Appleton business man to his traveling companion one dark stormy night last year as he speeded up his car in order to send a dark object that was creeping along the highway into a ditch at the side of the road. In answer to his companion's astonished query he stated that the object was a black cat, his pet superstition and gave his private theory on breaking its bad luck. Mr. Local Business Man stated that whenever he is on an automobile trip and a black cat attempts to cross his path in the dead of night, he does his best to run it over in the interests of his business. This and many similar and seemingly foolish superstitions seem to haunt many of Appleton's leading citizens.

The two most common superstitions in Appleton, ranking with the black cat story, are the idea of "knocking wood" and the "13 hoodoo." Another pet cause of mental anguish is the superstition of walking under a ladder. One local youth tells of walking down the street with two companions who refused to walk under a ladder. He, never superstitious, tried the venture, taunting his comrades about it. Less than a half hour later in playing ball he fell and wrenched a knee which put him on crutches for nearly two weeks. In a day's time he became one of the most superstitious of Appleton's young men.

Four of the leading hotels of the city have no room 13 and two of them admit that the superstition of their patrons is the cause. The clerk at the Briggs hotel stated that there had never been a room 13 in his hotel as long as he had been there, but was unable to give a reason for it as the hotel has changed hands many times since it was built. He stated however, that he didn't believe superstition bothered his patrons much. Room 13 at the Northern has always been a

The 120th Field Artillery band will go to Manitowoc Saturday to take part in the picnic and parade of employees of the Aluminum Goods Manufacturing Co. of Manitowoc. Other bands in the parade will be the Aluminum Goods Marine band, the Manitowoc high school band, and the Fond du Lac American Legion Pipe and Drum corps.

About 7,000 people, families of the employees of the Aluminum Goods company will be at the picnic. Three dance orchestras and three troupes of professional entertainers will furnish amusement. Silver piece awards will be given to 25 employees, and gold watches will be given to three employees who have completed a quarter century of service with the company.

A DISTINCTION FOR THE POST-CRESCENT

An article appearing in today's Post-Crescent announces the fact that this newspaper now has a larger circulation than any newspaper published in the United States in a city the size of Appleton. In fact, no other newspaper published in a city of this size has 12,000 circulation; while that of the Post-Crescent is more than 12,600 net paid.

Naturally this distinction is gratifying to the publishers of this newspaper. We believe it reflects, in a measure, the success which has been achieved by the diligent effort of this organization to give this community a good newspaper. The aim and ambition of progressive newspapermen is to enlarge the circle of readers of their product. This ambition is being realized by the makers of the Post-Crescent, as more than 5,000 new subscribers have been added during the five and one half years since the consolidation of the former Daily Post and Evening Crescent.

In its effort to add new readers the Post-Crescent has been gradually widening its territory and extending its field of activity until today the Post-Crescent is as well known in Clintonville and Waukegan as it was in Kaukauna and Little Chute a few years ago. It is endeavoring to place an up-to-date newspaper within reach of all readers in territory adjacent to Appleton. The growth of interest in this newspaper in this territory is partially responsible for the supremacy which the Post-Crescent has attained in circulation.

But there are other important factors. This community—the central Fox River Valley—is one of the most progressive and prosperous in the entire United States. It is wide-awake and alert, it has buying capacity and ability, it has stable business and farming interests, all of which combine to make a community whose resources are practically unlimited. Such a community is entitled to a newspaper of prominence and distinction.

We believe that the readers of the Post-Crescent and the community generally will be proud with us of this newspaper's latest achievement.

SPANISH PISTOLS ARE GOOD: THEY MISS

Six Spanish gun manufacturers have been notified by the United States tariff commission that unless they appeal to the court of customs appeals within sixty days and are successful in defending their business, they will be restrained from further sale of their cheap mail order guns in this country.

The notice was issued, not because the tariff commission wants to protect the United States against cheap mail order guns, but because Smith & Wesson, who manufacture automatics and revolvers in this country, complained of the dishonest Spanish competition with our home industry. The Spaniards made inferior copies of good American pistols, counterfeited even the names of our manufacturers, and flooded the mail order market with them. American gunmakers want Americans to tote American guns. We're not so sure that thoughtful Americans will agree with them.

As between a straight-shooting, sure-firing American gun in the hands of a crook and a cheap Spanish imitation which may happily miss fire, we don't know but it might be a point of wisdom for the government to encourage substitution of the Spanish article. The same may be true of American vs. Spanish pistols in the home, where the moron, the temporarily demented or dejected or angered member of the family can get at them.

Possibly it will be advisable to rid ourselves of the mail order small arm from Spain. But the Spanish imitation has no more hideous purpose than the mail order, or even the average counter small arm made in America. Its use is to destroy human life. There is nothing sacred, the American manufacturer should keep in mind, about his own business as against the Spanish imitator's so far as the eventual destination of its bullets is concerned.

Sometime the United States is going to confine manufacture of these sinews of cowardice, hatred and crime to federal arsenals or to a few licensed firms authorized only to supply police forces. Due to constitutional objections this may have to come about by prohibition, state by state, of the sale of weapons within its boundaries, gradually throwing the makers out of business.

THE SUBMERGED AUTHOR

Appropos the recent purchase of chain after chain of theaters by a heavily capitalized motion picture corporation, the trade journal notes that several years ago the producer dominated the picture market; then it was the distributor; and today it is the theater. "And curiously enough," says the periodical, "it looks as though with this new era the producer is to come back to his own."

The remarkable feature about this commentary is the total lack of recognition of the existence of a mere author. Pictures may come and pictures may go and somebody writes the original scenarios. Who? Very few know, and none at all seem to care. The movie-viewing public is told the name of the distributor, the name of the producer and director and both the name and fame of each of the principal members of the acting cast. But throughout the long history of creative achievement in the realm of letters and in the province of drama, never was the artist primarily responsible for the entire conception so completely obliterated as is the case in the movie theater today.

There are several reasons, but none of them are wholly adequate. However, perhaps the nearest to the truth is that a large number of the stories on which photoplays are based are not such as would be conducive to a burning desire on the part of the author to admit having written them. Having supplied a scenario on the theme of "Scorching Souls" or something of that character, the writer, presumably being intelligent enough not to feel any pride in such an achievement, is content to draw the check for the work and remain in obscurity.

When authors are permitted to write worth while stories for motion pictures they will probably insist on getting at least some of the credit. So the remedy seems to lie in patience—that is, in waiting until producers discover that screen-supporting patrons do not want "Flaming Love" all the time, or even most of the time. They merely put up with it.

DAINTY MAID

I never have noticed an over amount of powder spread over your face. It's likely you feel that the rouge doesn't count, for I never have noticed a trace.

Your eyelashes haven't that sticky-like trace and your lips are not covered with red. You're satisfied, quite, with your nature-made face, and you're wise, 'cause you're using your head.

A lot of the foolishness fashion decrees has had no effect upon you. Your skirts are not shortened way up to your knees, and you're sane in the things that you do.

There once was a time girls demanded respect through their sensible dainty-like way. It seems that you knew what would be the effect of the rashness prevailing today.

A worthy example! That's just what you are. And you make admiration worth while. You're smarter, and sweeter and wiser, by far, than girls who have fallen for style.

ROMANCE IN RED

Infants, Indians, idiots, etc., notoriously fond of red.

Health and beauty always done in red in comic supplements and on cover of periodical of piffle.

Symbolic suggestion mental and moral deficiency in once familiar phrase "red light district."

Use of rouge by imperfect lady quite all right, however, from hygienic viewpoint, provided the decoration is not obvious to the ordinary observer.

Of course a perfect lady needs no such artifice. Mere perfection seems unsatisfactory to the badly educated taste. Take eyelashes for example; in the perfect state they are about one-fourth inch long, plain, straight or slightly curved heavy hairs; in the movies eyelashes run up to an inch long and come in sheaves or bundles and are equipped with beads or sinkers to hold them down, and are curled like pistils. Beauty is as the movies do, in the view of the millions of dumbbells who squander their poor wages on moustaches which purport to make the eyelashes look like that.

The actual countenance of youth and beauty is somewhat pale, with only momentary blushes. A permanent florid flush rather belongs to middle age—high blood pressure, overnourished, short of breath.

Rouge is composed of various more or less harmless ingredients, such as chalk, starch, oxid of zinc, carmin, anilin dye, safflower and other red coloring matters. Lip sticks are made of wax, cacao butter and scented talc, with the red coloring matter. Liquid lip rouge is usually a solution of one of the aniline dyes in alcohol.

Not all rouge is red these days. Once the painted one overcomes her natural modesty about being painted, she does not shrink from bizarre effects in purple, mauve, azure or even more startling disguises. Most of these freak tints are anilin dyes.

A kind of harmless paint for concealing white patches (leukoderma, vitiligo, piebald skin) about the face or neck has the following formula:

Glycerin, one dram.
Zinc oxide and calamin, of each, one-half ounce.
Water, four ounces.

Ichthyol, from five to 60 drops, to be added drop by drop until the desired tint, to match the normal skin, is obtained. The proportion of glycerine may be increased to two or three drams if desired.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Ben Told

I have been in the habit of putting petroleum jelly on my lips as this gives the same effect as lip stick. But I have been told by several friends that this will cause the growth of hair. Is their statement true? (G. R.)

Answer.—Their fancy is untrue.

Plastic Surgery.

Last November I wrote you about having a plastic operation. You approved of Dr. He performed and acting on your advice I visited him. He performed the operation much to the satisfaction of myself and my family. There is a cool confidence in the execution of his work which speaks a thorough understanding of what he does. (C. L. H.)

Answer.—Your story has a happy ending; unlike the sad story of the misguided victim who seeks out a self-lauding quack for such an operation.

Travelers Are Not Molested Where French Have Navies Under Good Control

Bulletin Of The National Geographic Society.

That the greater part of Morocco is so well under French control that tourists find no difficulties even while the war with the Rifis is in progress in the north, is brought out in a letter from Dr. David Fairchild.

"With the serious preparations which the French are making here," Dr. Fairchild writes from Casablanca, "I think that the war will be over about the first of October and it will be as safe to come here as it is to go to Baltimore. So far the war has not made the slightest difference in our travel in our automobile anywhere and everywhere we have wanted to go and we have been out late into the night and feel as safe as we do in the suburbs of Washington."

"This is one of the most interesting places I have ever visited. It is an untouched chapter out of the Bible, as simple and unspoiled as though one drifted to a new land in a dream. The climate at this minute is simply perfect and from the time we set foot in the land in April we have had almost perfect weather every day. January, February and March would be a bit too chilly for me, I think, as the thermometer goes to 22 Fahrenheit in Marrakesh."

"I have found some interesting plants for cultivation in America, among which is the argan tree which is in reality a forage crop standing on end."

"Think of a forest of 1,000,000 acres of trees which are so spiny that you can't travel through it without puncturing your tires and which bears fruit so acid that it burns your throat terribly. Yet this tree is the cornerstone, so to speak, of the agriculture of more than 500,000 people who have come down unchanged from Bible times. It really is an amazing thing and somehow I hadn't realized the fact from the descriptions in the books and what others have told me."

Q. Was the exile of Alexander Selkirk (Robinson Crusoe) on the island of Juan Fernandez, voluntary or involuntary? K. D. B.

A. Selkirk had been sailing master of the vessel "Cinque Ports" but he could not agree with the commander, so at his request was landed on the island in 1704, and for four years and four months lived in complete solitude daily climbing to a lookout for another ship to take him home. The ship which finally appeared was the "Duke," a privateer commanded by the Will Rogers.

Q. Who said "These are the times that try men's souls"? H. C.

A. This was the opening phrase of the first number of the "Crisis" a series of pamphlets published by Thomas Paine in 1775. The entire clause was "These are the times that try men's souls: the summer soldier and the sunshine patriot will in this crisis shrink from the services of their country; but he that serves it now deserves the love and thanks of man and woman."

Q. How did the Bresca family acquire the privilege of furnishing the palms for St. Peter's, on Palm Sunday? S. D. K.

A. In the days of Pope Sixtus V an obelisk was being elevated in the piazza before St. Peter's. When it was about to be reared, Sixtus threatened every man, woman and child with death if one spoke while the obelisk was being elevated. Forty-six cranes were used. Suddenly, as the stone was slowly rising, the ropes began to yield. Then the stillness was broken by a voice: "Acque alle funi!" (Throw water on the ropes!). Bucketfuls of water were emptied over the ropes which began to yield. The workmen then proceeded to raise the block to its base. A captain of a fishing smack at San Remo, Bresca by name, was the man who at the risk of his life defied the Pope's order and spoke. As a reward for saving the lives of many workmen, Sixtus decreed that henceforth, the family of Bresca and his native village should furnish the palm for use at St. Peter's on Palm Sunday.

Q. What is Pensacola, Florida, noted for? C. M. R.

A. Pensacola is the home of a large fishing industry. Its fleet goes as far off as the Coast of Yucatan. Pensacola is also a large exporter of lumber. The United States Aviation Station for the Gulf is located here. A few miles west is the Perdido River, the boundary between Florida and Alabama.

A. Snakes are eaten by the Chinese, natives of Australia and by those of many other countries but the flesh is reckoned unwholesome and liable to occasion leprosy.

Q. Should the mail of a Congressman be addressed "Hon" or "The Hon."? L. H. F.

A. In addressing a Representative in the United States Congress, the form is "The Hon." In addressing a Senator, the envelope should read "Senator" etc.

WISE MAN WILL BUY HIS COAL NOW, DEALERS SAY

Editor Post-Crescent—Our attention has been called to an editorial in your edition of July 13 relative to the coal situation, particularly the threatening coal strike and its effect upon the coal supplies.

The information contained in it is so grossly incorrect that we wonder just where you obtained your information and what your object could be in advising people to adopt a course which will undoubtedly result in future trouble and expense to them.

In the second paragraph of the editorial you refer to Mr. Hoover and his investigators relative to the coal situation in 1920. You state that the stocks of coal were above normal and that Mr. Hoover found them so.

We have before us the bulletins issued by the United States Department of the Interior dated June 1st, 1925. This bulletin shows that on June 1st, 1920 the country had only a 20 days supply of coal aside from that which was already in coal bins. This shortage in coal reserves continued until January 1st, 1921.

Fortunately dealers had persuaded people to buy coal early and there was a large tonnage in bins. Had the public waited until September 1 to buy, coal prices would have gone much higher than they actually did go and some consumers would have been unable to obtain coal at any cost.

Herbert Hoover has been persistent in his advice that consumers buy early in the season. He is advising early buying at the present time.

In the fourth paragraph of your editorial you state that "it is reported that there are large stocks of coal stored above ground at the present time." This is not true as the June report of the Department of the Interior indicates.

On January 1, 1924, there was a maximum coal reserve. It averaged a 62 day supply. On June 1st, 1925, this reserve had fallen to 38 days supply. Between March 1 and June 1 with the best season for mining at hand, reserves decreased from a 44 day supply to a 38 day supply.

An average of 8,000,000 tons of bituminous coal per week is being mined. Consumption is approximately 10,000,000 tons per week. This condition exists in the face of low domestic consumption and the best possible conditions for coal mining.

This means that approximately 2,000,000 tons of coal per week is not being supplied from coal reserves and that the coal reserves decrease in just that amount.

This report of the Department of the Interior states that in the State of Wisconsin there is an average of 30 days supply at present in storage. Other states have more than this average and others have less.

Throughout Wisconsin there has been a steady decrease in the consumption of hard coal. Most of the consumers who have given up hard coal are now burning soft coal and coke. The majority of those who have turned to soft coal are burning Pocahontas.

Government reports prove that there is no Pocahontas in storage at the mines. This coal because of its high depreciation is shipped as soon as it is mined. At present the only supplies, aside from that in coal bins, is in transit, with very low stocks in dealers hands.

Appleton is one city in Wisconsin which has a very high percentage of Pocahontas consumers. Any shortage in the supply of Pocahontas will be seriously felt by Appleton.

Appleton dealers, like all other coal dealers, do not wish to stock heavily in Pocahontas because of its high depreciation. Most of the coal of this type is sold very soon after it is received in local yards. As dealers are very anxious to care for as much of the season's demand for Pocahontas at the present time. By doing so we can save money to the consumer.

The price offered coal consumers on coal at present is a just price. It is unusually low. We are not urging patrons to buy now because we believe there will be a break in prices later. In fact we are protecting our patrons against a decrease in price.

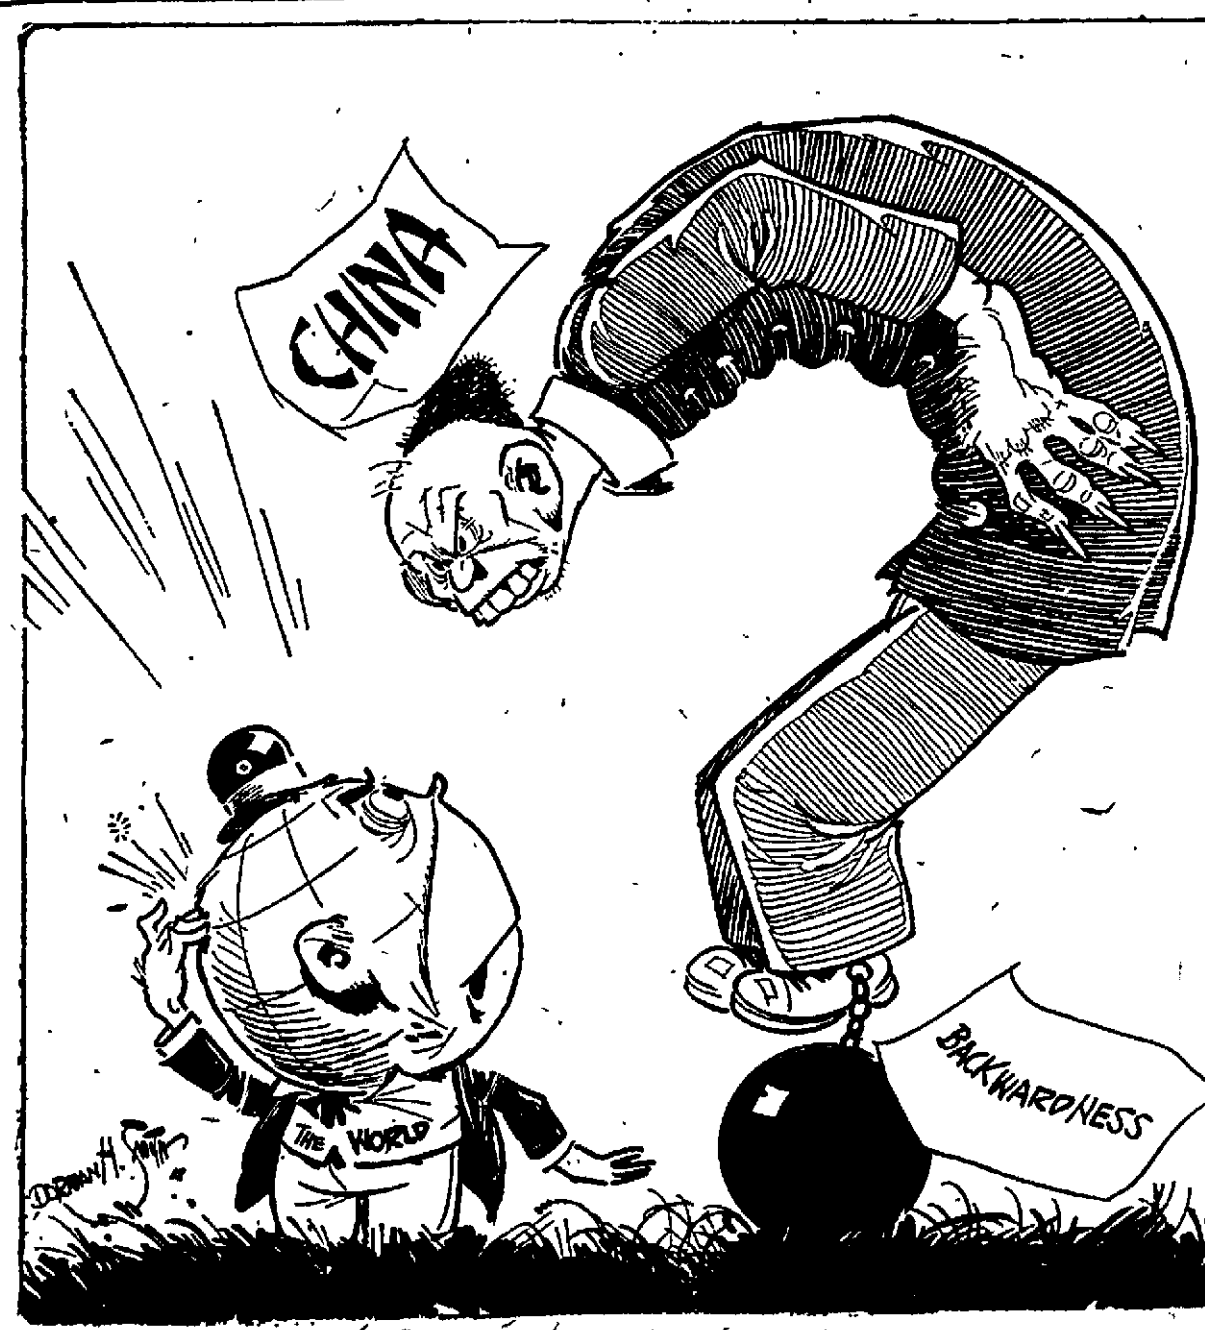

Appleton is notoriously slow in its fuel buying. Consistently to the south of us and Green Bay north of us are delivering large quantities of coal at present. Appleton is not.

Strike conditions and a low fuel reserve will not injure the consumer who has purchased early. They will injure the man who purchases late. Our profits on early delivered coal are not greater than that on coal that is delivered late. We are not urging early buying because of purely selfish motives.

We are however urging early buying because as business men rendering service to this city we feel that delay in buying is going to result in higher prices even though there is no strike and a serious shortage if there is a strike.

Signed,
Appleton Coal Dealers Assn.

Girls Eager To Start For Onaway Isle

Getting started for Onaway Island, and a week of camp life at the Chain o'Lakes near Waupaca is the thought uppermost in the minds of 36 girls who will leave for the Appleton Womans club camp early Friday morning. Arrangements have been completed, and the girls and counselors are packing their old clothes, swimming suits, fishing tackle and equipment for outdoor recreation in anticipation of the outing.

In only a week's time the girls will be taught useful things which will be of service throughout their lives. They will be taught to swim, to cook camp foods, and to make camp equipment out of materials furnished by Mother Nature. They will learn about trees, flowers, birds, and animals, and will have all these things to study close at hand so that their learning will be more effective. They will study the stars and planets, they will be taught how to shoot an arrow straight to the bulls eye, how to paddle a canoe, and how to build a camp fire that will burn and not shoot out a sickly flame and expire as so many would-be camp fires do.

There will be classes in outdoor handicraft work. They will be outdoor plays, such as Robin Hood for which costumes already have been secured. Then there will be the camp singing with the aid of the camp song books which the girls will make themselves in their handicraft work.

Not to be missed from camp activities are the numerous canoe and launch trips which will be taken through the lakes and through the wild streams and creeks which link up the long string of lakes. And to climax the activities of each of these days so crammed full of enjoyment and educational value will be the big camp fire at night. Marshmallow roasts will be a feature of these camp fires, and camp songs around the big blaze will mark the end of seven perfect days at the beautiful Onaway Island camp.

PAID TOURIST CAMP IS POPULAR WITH TOURISTS

Oshkosh — The Oshkosh "paid" camp site at Menominee park is going big. Tourists have been swarming in. Accurate check made by the attendants shows that 624 campers visited the Oshkosh site in the last two weeks. This indicates that the season has just about begun. The entire summer registered at the camp since the opening of the season is 1,083. Last year at this time the registration was 838. Receipts from the site at 50 cents a night so far total of $51.50.

The tourists come from the east, the south, the west and the north. So far this season the site has accommodated tourists from every state in the union and from Canada and the Hawaiian Islands. They are in pairs, by threes, fours and more. The average party is four, the keeper states. The biggest run at the campsite is made by Illinois, Minnesota, Michigan and Wisconsin tourists.

Y. M. C. A. CUBS
WHIP LEGION TO KEEP LOOP LEAD

Veterans' Wildness Responsible for 9 to 7 Defeat in Close Battle

Kaukauna—The Y. M. C. A. Cubs retained their lead in the Twilight league Tuesday evening when they defeated the Legion 9 to 7 in an interesting game. Both teams were a little off form but the Cubs played the better game. The youngsters started in the first chapter to massacre the agate with a vengeance by collecting a single, two doubles and another single for three tallies.

The added another in the third round when Mereness was safe on Brenzel's wild throw. He went to second on a passed ball and scored when Ray Smith drilled a double into left field. The Cubs let down their defense in the fourth and allowed the legion to chase in four buttons but they came back strong again in the fifth and sewed up the victory by denying the platter five times.

In that inning the legion went into the air and lack of judgment with the pill gave the Cubs practically every run. The youngsters collected only two hits to score the five markers.

The legion opened its column in the second with a run when Jones was safe on an error and scored on Hagg's double. In the fourth stanza Mereness walked, two men and fanned one when the next man socked the apple into center field. It was an error on Miller when he misjudged the drive, but it was good for two bases and scored two runners. Two more hits accounted for two more numbers.

With the score 9 to 5 the legion opened its seventh and last inning with two clean singles. The next two men were too anxious to hit and struck out wildly. Bill Hass waited 'em out patiently and finally connected for a screaming drive to the right field fence which scored the two runners. With a chance to tie the score the last man fanned by swinging at three wild balls.

Clintonville Business Man Finds Farm Situation Most Favorable at Home

Special to the Post-Crescent
Clintonville—A. C. Cather, secretary and general manager of Topp-Stewart Tractor company, just returned from a trip through the eastern states and Canada. Mr. Cather has been absent since May and visited most of the agencies and dealers in that territory. He says farm crops and business conditions are as good in Wisconsin as any place he visited. There are many abandoned farms in New York State, and the big coal mines of West Virginia have been inoperative for two years. The local tractor factory is planning a big increase in production for next year. The tractor is a four-wheel drive and is sold for road and building work.

Chester Edmund Block, 21, died at Kenosha, where he was employed, following an operation for intestinal troubles. The body was brought home to Split Rock where his parents reside on a farm, last Saturday. The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon from the Methodist church at Marion with the Rev. CUT LOGS TO BE USED
FOR BUILDING SHIPS

Special to the Post-Crescent
New London—The Hatten Lumber Co. of this city is finishing the sawing of a special carload of timbers which will be shipped to England, where they will be used for ship building. Timbers which are to be used for ship building have to be of perfect shape. Since spruce, the Hatten company has been saving the choicest timber to fill the contract which was made through a firm at Wausau. The logs average about 500 board feet each. A few of the larger ones reached nearly 1000 feet. They were cut roughly, leaving some bark at the outer edges, which was taken off with a draw knife. They were planed by hand, cross grained, giving them the appearance of hewed timbers.

Driver Asks People to Give Addresses When Sending in Fire Calls

Special to the Post-Crescent
New London—The local fire department made a run to the Huss home, at the corner of Spring and Dorris-st, at 8 o'clock on Wednesday morning. A chimney fire was in progress, but was extinguished before serious damage resulted.

The driver of the department, Matt Nesbitt, who receives all alarms at the fire station, said local residents do not take enough care in turning in fire alarms. They seldom give a complete address, and sometimes give no address at all, which causes the department to try and obtain the address through the telephone operator. This was the case on Wednesday morning. No address whatever was given, and a result, Mr. Nesbitt was forced to inquire of the operator for the address. Even then, only the general location could be ascertained, as the operator can not always give the exact address. People who turn in alarms should always keep cool, speak slowly, and give the name, address, and exact location of the place where the fire exists, it was said. If these precautions are observed, there will be no time lost, and the department can proceed at once to the place of the fire.

STAGE And SCREEN

EVERGLADES SCENE MYSTERY ROMANCE IN "SUNKEN SILVER"

A thrilling, romantic tale of mystery and adventure in Florida—one of the world's most picturesque and popular winter playground—is depicted in Pathe's new ten-chapter serial, "Sunken Silver," featuring Allene Ray and Walter Miller, an attraction coming Saturday to the Appleton Theater. An episode to be shown every Saturday for ten consecutive weeks. "Black Caesar's Clan," one of the best selling novels of the popular author, Albert Payson Terhune, supplies the plot for "Sunken Silver," which was adapted for the screen by the veteran Patheserial scenarist, Frank Leon Smith, and directed by George B. Seitz, for fifteen consecutive years a director of Patheserials. To get the correct atmosphere of Florida everglades, tropical islands and shore, and eerie jungle, the entire production company spent three months in Miami. There they produced a thrilling narrative dealing with the attempts of two men to defraud the United States Government of a cargo of silver dollars. These dollars, coined in 1894, were shipped to France as part of the Louisiana Purchase money. In a storm the ship was lured on the reefs by Black Caesar, a pirate not of fiction but of fact and history, who captured the money, sank his treasure in a pool, and then died with the secret of its hiding place. The action of the story is laid in modern times and is concerned with a three-cornered struggle between the U. S. Secret Service Agents, a party of adventurers, and a band of descendants of Black Caesar's clan, who think the lost treasure belongs to them.

BLANCHE SWEET BLOSSOMS OUT AS FILM COMEDienne

For the first time in several years Blanche Sweet attempts light comedy on the screen in "The Sporting Venus," which is showing at the Elite Theater today and tomorrow. The combination of the talented actress in this role, and the able direction of her husband, Marshall Neilan, is a most happy one, and "The Sporting Venus" can be rated as one of the best productions on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer program. Neilan has interpolated a host of amusing incidents and original touches in this whimsical story by Gerald Beaumont, with that breezy style which characterizes all his pictures. Ronald Colman is as destructive as ever to feminine hearts in the lead opposite Miss Sweet, and Lew Cody proves he is as good a comedian, as he is a villain in asserio-comic role. George Fawcett, Josephine Crowl, Edward Martindel, Kate Price, Hank Mann and others make up the supporting cast.

JINX IS BASEBALL SLANG FOR HOODOO

What is a jinx? The term originated with baseball and is attributed to any person or thing that brings about bad luck. It has always been associated more or less with sports. Every golf enthusiast has his or her jinx in the frequenters of the links, and in most every concern there is one or more jinxes. It was probably this idea that led Edgar Franklin to write his popular magazine story "The Ladder Jinx" from which the Jess Robbins' production of the same name, which will be shown at the New Bijou Theater on Friday, and Saturday was adapted. The ladder superstition is perhaps one of the oldest in existence, and around this superstition, and countless others such as thirteen at a table, stepping over a broom, spilling salt and the like, Jess Robbins, assisted by David Kirkland, has written and produced an amusing six-reel comedy in which an all-star cast is engaged. Such names as Edward Horton, Tully Marshall, Otis Harlan and Max Asher appear in the list. Margaret Landis has the heroine's role opposite Edward Horton.

The Post-Crescent Now Tops The List Of Daily Newspapers In Its Class

Circulation The Largest of Any Newspaper
In The United States
Published In A City The Size of Appleton

The Post-Crescent has now reached the enviable position of leading all newspapers published in the United States in volume of circulation for cities the size of Appleton

For several weeks this newspaper has had auditors at work checking its circulation against that of other newspapers in the United States published in cities of similar size. The report of this reputable organization reads in part as follows:

"There is no other city in the United States ranking 20,000 population in the 1920 Census that has a newspaper over 12,000 net paid circulation.

"The next thing to the Post-Crescent is the Mason City, Iowa, Globe which has 12,961 circulation, but Mason City is over the 20,000 mark in the 1920 Census, so that the statement holds that the Post-Crescent is the largest newspaper in the United States in points under 20,000 (1920 Census.) The Post-Crescent is not only the largest but no other newspaper has as much as 12,000."

The Post-Crescent is justly proud of this position. Such a showing reflects great credit upon the prosperous, progressive and intelligent community in which this newspaper is published, for after all, it is the community that makes it possible for the Post-Crescent to reach the top of the list.

A good newspaper and a good community form a winning combination and the Post-Crescent is glad to share with this community credit for attaining this point of supremacy.

The Post-Crescent will endeavor to maintain this position by giving the community the best possible newspaper within its power and ability.

COUNCIL CONSIDERS BUYING PARK IN FIFTH WARD

WANT ALDERMEN TO SEE PROPERTY BEFORE VOTING

Council Committee of Whole Will Inspect Ravine Tuesday Evening

Purchase of a ravine in the Fifth ward for a playground will be finally decided upon by the council committee after that body has made a personal inspection of it on the evening of July 28, according to a vote taken at an adjourned meeting of the council Wednesday evening. No opposition was offered to the project when Alderman Wenzel Hassmann presented it for consideration.

The council resolved itself into a committee then took a recess until 6:30 on the evening of July 28. At that time Mayor John Goodland, Jr., and all the aldermen will visit the land which is to be purchased. The committee then will prepare its recommendations to the council and a meeting will be held to close up the matter.

HASSMANN LEADS MOVEMENT

Alderman Hassmann placed the project before the council in the form of a resolution proposing the purchase of eight pieces of land on which the city has options. The park is to include the ravine in the block bounded by W. Packard and W. Atlantic streets and at the rear of residences on North Division and State sts., and the cost of the property will be $3,450. Access may be had to the ravine from both North Division and State sts.

Owners of the land and the prices agreed upon are: J. E. Grassberger $500, Daniel Leppia $1,000, Appleton Auto Exchange (Nicholas Reitzner) $500, Thomas W. Varren $150, Mrs. M. Roegner $300, and John A. Smith $700. A. A. Fraser offered his land free if the city would agree to provide a drain conduit for his garage. Two other parcels of land on W. Atlantic st. owned by Anton Stadler and Grace Cverwey also were wanted but no terms could be agreed upon with the owners.

WANT CLEAR TITLE

Some of the aldermen were in favor of immediate purchase but others felt that the city should make sure it could obtain satisfactory title to all eight pieces of land before final authority was given to pay out the money. Alfred C. Bosser, city attorney, requested an early decision so he would have time to examine the titles and close the transactions before the options expired. The first one matures Aug. 7.

The suggestion that the entire council visit the place so nobody would vote blindly was received favorably and the committee of the whole, while in session on other matters, fixed the date of July 28 as the time when an inspection will be made. A sewer problem on Weimer st. also is to be taken up that evening at a meeting with the property owners at the city hall and it is expected the committee will rise to report right after this session is completed.

CATHOLIC KNIGHTS TO CONVENE IN MILWAUKEE

A number of Appleton delegates are expected to attend the convention of Catholic Knights which will open in Milwaukee on Tuesday July 28. FIRST WARDERS GASP AND YELL FOR GAS MASKS

Several residents of the east end of the First ward who sleep with their windows wide open regretted their desire for "open" air early Thursday morning. When they turned over to snatch another nap before breakfast, the sleepers were jarred to wakefulness by an odor which seemed to fill every square inch of air and few dreamers were able to get back to dreamland for a half-hour while the "awful smell" persisted. The odor was a familiar one, however, and Thursday a number of the "sleepless" sleepers were wondering "who the dickens killed that skunk?" The dire deed was committed at least a quarter mile away, from the east end and probably was caused by a speeding motorist.

COMMITTEE OF WHOLE TAKES UP COUNCIL TIME

Aldermen Discuss City's Business Where Public Can't Listen in

S. Weimar-st property owners will have an open hearing with the common council on July 28 concerning the sewer situation on that street, according to a decision of the council at an adjourned meeting Wednesday evening. An ordinance embodying an electrical code for the city and creation of the office of electrical inspector was introduced and ordered published. Several street and sewer matters also were acted upon and the Fifth ward park purchase was laid over for final action until the council inspects the property as recounted elsewhere in this issue.

There was practically no discussion of any problem in the open session of the council, as all matters of any importance requiring the views of the aldermen were referred to the committee of the whole and argued behind closed doors. The adjourned meeting was called to vote on sewer contracts that needed immediate action.

Quite a number of S. Weimar-st taxpayers signed a petition urging that the council meet with them to consider the sewer situation as it was said there was a need for remedying of conditions there. The council referred this matter to the committee of the whole and in the recommendations offered at the close of the session set the date of Tuesday, July 28, as the time of the conference with these people. It will be held at 8 o'clock in the evening at the city hall and the council and city engineer will be instructed to be present. Inspection of the proposed Fifth ward park is to be made previous to this meeting and it is expected that action on purchase will be made when the committee rises to report.

REGULATE ELECTRIC WIRING

All electrical work such as installing, wiring and maintenance must be done according to a definite and detailed electrical code, according to the ordinance which was introduced. An electrical inspector is to be appointed and he will issue permits for the work as well as to see that it is done properly. The ordinance will be published in full and a copy supplied each alderman so he can read it over. Action on it will be taken later.

Paving of N. State-st from W. College-ave to a point beyond Fountain Lumber Co. and Jacquet Cheese Co. was proposed by the street committee and the matter was referred to the board of public works with power to act, after the committee of the whole had discussed it. These concerns desire to have the work done now so that when the remainder of N. State-st is paved, perhaps next year, they will have an outlet for their trucks over the portion already surfaced.

Plans for three minor sewer installations were submitted. They were on N. Drew-st from E. Circle-st to E. Brewster-st, on E. Circle-st from N. Union-st to N. Drew and an extension on W. Oklahoma-ave. These projects were referred to the committee of the whole and its recommendation was adopted approving the plans and empowering the board of public works to do the work.

Since no objections to benefits and damages were registered before or at this council meeting on sewer extensions on six streets, the board of public works was empowered to proceed with final determination of these contracts and the final notice will be given the property owners. These sewers are on Owassa, Spruce, Locust, Mason, Eighth and Victoria-sts. Construction is to be started soon.

PAVE E. FRANKLIN-ST

Paving of E. Franklin-st from N. Union to N. Lawe-st was placed with the board of public works after the committee of the whole had taken it under discussion. A grade also was established for this block and adopted. Property owners there waived all benefits and damages and asked the city to have the block paved while the work is being done on N. Lawe-st. Arrangements will be made with the contractors to include this street in their project and the cost will be charged to each property owner.

The committee of the whole remained in session after returning to the council chamber long enough to discuss moving of a bridge in the "Rats." This bridge is one that spans an abandoned rail race at Appleton Machine Co. and the plan is to move it to the tail race of Tehulah mill of Fox River Paper Co. near S. Lawe-st where it will be of use to traffic and will replace an old wooden bridge. A report of Harrington

APPLETON FIRM BIDS FOR SCHOOL ADDITION

Joseph Rezasch of Two Rivers was the low bidder on the addition to be built to the Washington school of Sheboygan. The Appleton Construction Co., also submitted a bid. The Rezasch bid was $85,417, while the figures submitted by Appleton Construction Co. totaled $97,374. There were seven bids submitted ranging from the low bid of $85,417 to $104,298 submitted by John De Zwarte of Sheboygan.

CHERRIES RETAILING HERE AT 18 CENTS

Sturgeon Bay cherries are selling for 18 cents a quart, according to Appleton grocers who are receiving large quantities of the annual Doorco harvest. The prices of cherries fluctuate considerably and also varies greatly with the quality of cherries. The range of price for a case of cherries is from $2 to $3.50 depending upon the quality of the fruit. The dark red western cherries are now selling from 25 cents to 50 cents a pound.

Howard and Ash bridge engineers, presented by Alderman Charles Fose, chairman of the street and bridge committee, declared that the engineers would prepare the plans at a cost of $300 and estimated the bridge could be moved and set up for $3,000. Its removal will mean the eventual straightening out of the road past the Valley Iron Works and other plants along their south side, as the company has learned the Valley Iron Works owners are not opposed to moving their office building to permit this. The bridge is safe enough to accommodate 6-ton trucks but is too narrow to allow two trucks to pass at once, although two passenger cars can do so. The committee of the whole recommended that the engineers be empowered to prepare the plans for removal of the bridge and erection of a concrete culvert to maintain the old tail race. The cost of the plans to be no more than $300.

Official notice was given the city of the action started in court by E. North-st property owners to prevent Charles Goettlicher from enlarging his bakery. The case for the city will be handled by A. C. Bosser, city attorney. Clinkering of a portion of W. Oklahoma-ave west of N. Story-st was authorized. Mr. Bosser was authorized to start condemnation proceedings to obtain sufficient land to open a 50-foot street running from W. Prospect-ave to W. Fourth-st. This property can't be obtained from the owners under any satisfactory arrangement, it was pointed out.

Mayor John Goodland, Jr., announced that he had telephoned White Construction company's head quarters in Chicago and learned that the equipment now is being assembled for shipment here and that the paving work ought to start almost any day.

Alderman George T. Richard was appointed as chairman of the committee of the whole during its session and Alderman R. F. McGowan was its secretary.

INSPECTOR PRAISES HIGH SCHOOL BOILERS

Appleton high school has the cleanest, and best kept boilers of any high school in Wisconsin, according to C. B. Turney, Appleton state boiler inspector, who has just finished a semi-annual inspection of the high school boilers. Mr. Turney inspects boilers in all the high schools of the state and says he had never seen any boilers in as grand a condition as are those at the Appleton school. Much credit for this excellent condition of the school boilers is given Orville "Cap" Harris, fireman of the high school who watches the boilers constantly and sees that they are always in good repair, and very clean.

Never Another Failure— never a re-cooking
One minute's boiling is all your Jam or Jelly needs

NO longer a trying task! Just add Certo to the fruit when you make your jam or jelly, and every glass jells perfectly every time.

For Certo is the element that makes fruit jelly— taken from the fruits themselves that are rich in it. Some fruits lack this jellifying property; it grows less in all fruits as they ripen. But with Certo no fruit can fail to jell.

And it needs only one minute's boiling. Certo's short boil saves the fruit juice, saves the flavor and color that you lost in the old long boiling down. You make half again as much jam or jelly from your fruit—and it is lovelier, more delicious than ever. Order Certo today from your grocer. Douglas-Pectin Corp., Granite Bldg., Rochester, N. Y.

NO DERTH OF CADDIES HERE, HEILIG SAYS

If labor permits issued to minors in this city this summer can be taken, as an indication, every Appleton golfer has at least seven caddies to serve his needs, according to H. F. Heilig, director of Appleton vocational school and local permit officer. Mr. Heilig estimates that he has issued at least 100 permits to caddies so far this summer, by far the largest number he has ever handled. The addition of the new Butte des Morts golf club is the probable reason, he said. Outside of this field, however, the demand for boy and girl labor far exceeds the supply. Mr. Heilig has had numerous calls for help. Boys and girls on his list are all at work. Several local firms have offered fine permanent positions for boys and girls. Next to caddying, farm labor takes most of the boys under his care, Mr. Heilig said.

NO OBJECTIONS OFFERED TO ZONE PLAN FOR NEENAH

Two Residential Sections to Be Established by Planning Commission

Neenah—Because no objections were raised to the zoning program as recommended by the city planning commission at the mass meeting Wednesday evening, the plan of designating certain portions of the city as strictly residential districts will be carried out. Mayor George Sande presided and explained what had been outlined by the planning commission. He displayed maps showing the district wherein nothing but residences can be built hereafter. Representatives of the Wisconsin Telephone Co. were present but offered no immediate objections to the plans but claimed that their company might be interested later when the time came to erect sub-offices away from the main office as the business increased. Thomas Thomsen and Evald Jersild appeared in behalf of residents near the corner of Winnebago-ave and S. Commercial-st where it had been reported an oil filling station was to be erected. That part of Winnebago-ave, it was pointed out, was included in the present zoning districts and the district as outlined by the council recently provided that where three-fourths of the property in a block was used for residences there could be no business house or manufacturing plant erected in that block. The district as outlined by the planning commission include all property south of Nicolet-bld between first-st and the west shore of Lake Winnebago as far east as the east end of the boulevard, in the Third and Fifth wards.

Milwaukee Man Says He Forged Check to Pay His Expenses to His Home

Neenah—A couple giving their names as Mr. and Mrs. Harold Smith of Milwaukee, were arrested Thursday noon by Officer Viggo Sorenson on a charge of forgery. A check for $27 had been cashed by the Durham Lumber Co., shortly before noon, in payment for a load of $6.75 wood which was to be delivered to a place on Main-st. The check was made out to a Raymond Ellis and drawn on Louis Dix, local drayman. Investigation disclosed that Mr. Dix had not issued the check and that there was no such person as Ellis nor such an address for delivery of the wood. After a search of the city the couple was found in a car on E. Doty-ave. At the jail the man stated that he found the blank check on one of the Commercial-st bridges and took the Dix name as the draw of Mr. Dix bearing the owner's name passed him on the bridge. He admitted the forgery and said he had been on the east side of the lake on a fishing trip and had run out of funds to defray expenses and took this chance of securing enough to get himself and wife back to their home, the wife claimed that she was a daughter of Max Brummer, a deputy sheriff in Milwaukee. D. K. Allen, district attorney was notified.

Glad He Picked This Good Stomach Remedy

Puts Stomach in Fine Condition—Ends Dizzy Spells, Catarrh and Makes You Sleep Well.
Indolent eating causes acute indigestion, gas, heartburn, heaviness and sour stomach — sometimes the distended stomach causes that dreadful feeling of near suffocation. Isn't it worth something to know of a remedy that will stop this distress in a few minutes—quicker than anything else you can think of. This is no common stomach remedy for it took years of time to combine Pepsin with the other effective agents that make Dare's Menth-Pepsin, so good that the worst cases of indigestion and gastritis and other chronic stomach ailments are speedily overcome and the most deranged stomachs are made clean, strong and healthy. Mr. Calvin Dilks of Alloway, N. J., a man of few words, knows this for he writes: "I entirely rid myself of an old catarrhal condition of the stomach with Dare's Menth-Pepsin." No matter what your stomach trouble is get a bottle today at Volgt's Drug Store or any drug store anywhere with the distinct understanding that if it doesn't do you the world of good your money will be returned.

COOPERATION IS BIG NEED OF U. S. KIWANIS HEAR

Son of Late Judge A. M. Spencer Talks at Meeting of Luncheon Club

Lack of cooperation between the government and big business is the great trouble with the government of the United States, according to Harold Sherwood Spencer, of London, Eng., son of the late Judge A. M. Spencer of this city, who spoke at the weekly meeting of the Kiwanis club Wednesday noon at Conway hotel.

Spencer gave a talk on the trouble with the United States government. Among people who study international relations there is in use the slogan, "Every country has the government that it deserves," Mr. Spencer said. "This brings up the question of whether, when people want leaders, they have their desires granted and get the leaders they deserve."

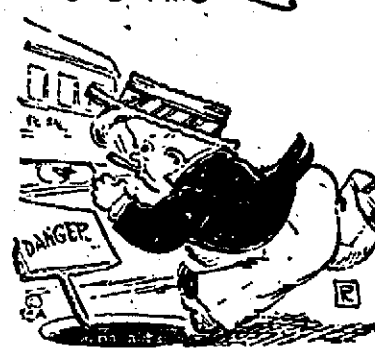

Spencer said that the leaders of the United States are duly elected political voices sent to the town hall, legislature, Congress or White House. The attitude of most of the voters toward these representatives should be looked into. Do they not regard them as they do the village pump, city waterworks or a national reservoir? Do they not get some personal advantage without much effort and in discharge of an obligation assumed by having accepted their vote? There is the pork-barrel because the voter wants pork. Outside of his personal wants the voter demands little of the man he elects to office. It is only natural that the office-holder should seek only his personal advancement as offered by the state and refreshing fruits of his office," Mr. Spencer declared.

YOUTH DROWNS WHEN BOAT TIPS OVER ON RIVER

Waves from Passing Launch Capsize Boat and Young Clam Fisher Sinks

Oshkosh.—It was reported to D. K. Allen, district attorney for Winnebago-co, that Henry E. Polley owned and operated the motorboat which caused the drowning of Arden Stratton at Oshkosh Wednesday. The district attorney has been asked to hold an inquest and, if necessary, hold Polley. It is charged he did not stop his motorboat to offer assistance after the accident.

His boat upset by waves which followed in the wake of a passing launch, Arden Stratton, 19, Fremont, was drowned 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at Oshkosh, a small town on the Wolf river four miles east of Fremont. Persons in the launch did not stop to render aid to Stratton, but speeded away along the river before anything could be learned about them.

Stratton was digging clams from the Wolf river when the large launch sped by his boat churning up waves of such size that Stratton's boat was overturned. Other clam diggers on the river rushed to his aid, but he had gone down quickly and could not be rescued. Stratton was unable to swim.

The river was dragged from 5 o'clock in the afternoon until 8 o'clock in the evening when the body was pulled out by Raymond Looker of Fremont. It was taken to an undertaking establishment at Fremont.

Funeral services will be held at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon from the home in Fremont, and at 2 o'clock at the Fremont Union church. Burial will be in Lakeside cemetery, Fremont. The Rev. Robert Menger will conduct the services. Stratton was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stratton of Fremont.

Authorities are searching for the owners of the launch which caused the tragedy.

Telegram From Leslie Prescott to John Alden Prescott
Have wired your mother that you will be at the Waldorf early Monday morning. She wants to come over here. You had better bring her over with you after you have seen mother off.

Letter From John Alden Prescott to Mamie Keeler
Dear Mamie: Just received your note.

I haven't been seeing you lately because I have come to my senses. You know that when we first met I told you that probably some day I would go as suddenly out of your life as I had come into it.

The time has now come for the going. Mamie, I don't think I have left you any worse than when I found you. You were then on the verge of starvation. Your former lover had left you. As I write this I am almost smiling (not quite, Mamie, not quite) at the picture you made sitting on the front steps of my house, as I came stumbling home from Carter's that night.

At that time I thought the world was against me, but I was only drunk. You looked so forlorn when you opened those great round eyes with fear and said: "Don't give me over to the police, I'm just going, sir." Then as I lurched against you, you remarked eagerly: "I really believe you're drunk."

"I am drunk, my girl," I answered, "and I really believe you're glad." You see, Mamie, I thought no one in the world cared for me and I had received a great ragging from my secretary that afternoon. She told me that I was neglecting my business and drinking too much. I was just drunk enough to think the world was all right again when you said you were glad.

When I asked you why you were glad, you answered: "Drunk men may be divided into two classes—good and bad-natured animals—and you're a good-natured one. Please take me into your house. I'm hungry and very cold."

Adventures Of The Twins

THE FLAMINGO GETS A KNOT IN HIS NECK

"What's the matter with you, sir?" asked Doctor Bill as a large red bird came walking up to his front door and lifted the knocker with his bill. "I have a cramp in my neck," said the red bird—or rather the pink bird, for he was really more of a deep pink than he was red. "I got it tied into a knot by mistake and couldn't get it out. It took my wife and my sister-in-law and my uncle half of yesterday and all of last night trying to untie it. Finally at daylight this morning they got it out, but my neck was so stiff I could hardly move it, besides I was almost starved to death. It's very hard to swallow a wiggling fish when you have a hard knot tied in your neck. Did you ever try it?"

The Twins laughed out loud at this and the bird looked around quickly. "Ouch," he cried. "I always forget and try to turn before I think. My neck's so stiff I feel as though it were a clothes prop or something. Who are your friends, Doctor Bill?"

Doctor Bill introduced Nancy and Nick. "This is Mister Flamingo," said he. "Mister Flamingo from Africa, sometimes called Mister Red Goose."

"I'll say I'm a goose," agreed the flamingo. "Anybody who would do what I did is worse than a goose. He's a dummy."

"What did you do?" asked Nancy. "What did I do?" repeated the flamingo in a disgusted voice. "Wait till you hear about it. Just wait. I was standing in the river with a lot of my relations having a wonderful time. The water wasn't very deep there, because we prefer places that are sort of shallow and muddy. We were playing a game called 'Snail, snail! Who's got the snail?' It's a fine game. Did you ever play it?"

"No," said Nick. "How does it go?"

"Well," said the flamingo, "you say, 'One, two, three—dip.' Then everybody dips his bill down into the water and brings up a scoopful of mud. Sometimes there's a water snail in it and sometimes not. Sometimes you get two though, and I even got three one time. They are extra tender and juicy and it's lots of fun sitting out the mud you get, to see if you have any snails. There's a prize. The one who gets the most in an afternoon gets a present of a fish for nothing. The rest have to catch it for him."

"Oh, ho, I see!" cried Doctor Bill. "It's like the old saying: 'He who has—gets.'"

"That's just it," nodded the flamingo. Then he said "ouch" again.

"Well, we were playing, 'Snail, snail! Who's got the snail?' when suddenly one of my friends yelled out suddenly, 'Oh, look! So we all stretched our necks to look. And what we saw was terrible. It was a big alligator lying right in the river near us."

"But almost at the same time someone on the other side of me called 'Look out over there, too!' It was a big hippopotamus coming our way! But I moved too quickly. My head went through a loop in my neck and stuck there. I thought I would never get away from that terrible place."

Doctor Bill brought out a bottle marked "Flamingo Oil." "This will cure you," he said kindly. (To Be Continued.)

Do they call your child "Spindle-shanks"?

Feed your children Nature's way—for normal weight and healthy growth

Nature will correct most "diet problems"—if you let your children eat Her foods as they were intended to be eaten—unrefined, untampered. Authorities agree on this.

And wheat is Nature's best food—whole wheat as it comes from Nature. Mixed with milk it is perfect. As good for growing children as mother's milk for babies.

That is why authorities are proclaiming these new breakfast flakes—Wheaties. Made from the whole of specially selected wheat. They contain the vital body-building elements most "refined" foods lack. More iron, for example, than raisins. More than twice as much natural mineral salts as in corn flakes.

At last—Nature's way to normal weight and healthy growth for your children.

Double nourishment most "refined" foods lack

So many "refined" foods only supply energy. It is not enough. Overweight or underweight may result. Children must have "building" nourishment also.

Wheaties meet this double need. First—they supply both energy and building elements. Second—in the right proportions to keep up normal weight and healthy growth.

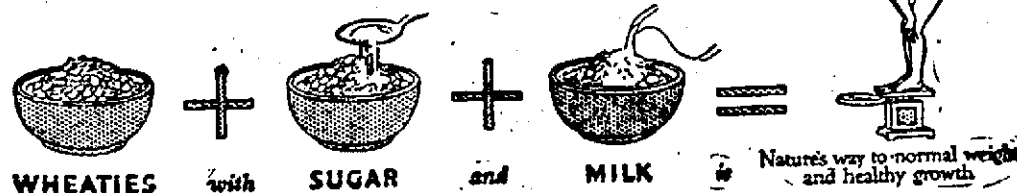

Wheaties awaken sluggish appetite. Build strong digestions. Their natural bran prevents constipation. They keep growing bodies healthy and normal.

Test now—at our risk

No need to urge children to eat Wheaties. A tempting new wheaty flavor they all adore. Crisp, sparkling flakes—stay crisp until the bowl is emptied.

Authorities highly recommend this natural food. So for the good of your child try Wheaties. At our risk. If you are not entirely satisfied, your grocer will give back full price you paid.

No mother should miss this opportunity. Phone your grocer for a package today.

flamingo in a disgusted voice. "Wait till you hear about it. Just wait. I was standing in the river with a lot of my relations having a wonderful time. The water wasn't very deep there, because we prefer places that are sort of shallow and muddy. We were playing a game called 'Snail, snail! Who's got the snail?' It's a fine game. Did you ever play it?"

"No," said Nick. "How does it go?"

"Well," said the flamingo, "you say, 'One, two, three—dip.' Then everybody dips his bill down into the water and brings up a scoopful of mud. Sometimes there's a water snail in it and sometimes not. Sometimes you get two though, and I even got three one time. They are extra tender and juicy and it's lots of fun sitting out the mud you get, to see if you have any snails. There's a prize. The one who gets the most in an afternoon gets a present of a fish for nothing. The rest have to catch it for him."

"Oh, ho, I see!" cried Doctor Bill. "It's like the old saying: 'He who has—gets.'"

The Thrifty Residents of This City

In our father's day, the man who was called thrifty invariably had his woodshed filled with good sound body maple. His purchases at times were made a full year ahead of the day he planned to use the fuel.

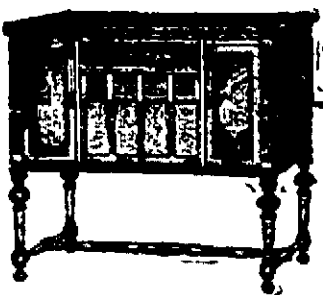

A slight difference in the price per cord or an opportunity to secure a product of unusual merit, guided him in this early buying and he entered the seasons of snow and blizzards with the knowledge that he was prepared.

If the coal dealers of Appleton were in a position to make public a list of the city's "early coal buyers," this list would contain practically all of the men whose judgment and foresight has placed them in circumstances where they have no need to worry for the future.

"Buy when the market is low" is the maxim of practically every successful man and the advice so given is the one that actuates the "Early Coal Buyer."

Summer purchased coal is not only cheaper than that purchased later in the season, but it has more quality, is better prepared and it is free from the wastes occasioned by weather exposure and handling.

The FLAPPER WIFE

by Beatrice Burton © 1925 NEA SERVICE INC.

By the end of the week Glory had learned to drive the car. She went Christmas shopping in it, bringing it home loaded with beribboned packages.

"You'll just perfectly kill me, Dick, when the bills come in!" Glory said one morning. "So don't buy me a Christmas present . . . just pay my bills instead, like a good sport! They aren't so awfully big."

But when the bills came in the first week in January, they were very big . . . much larger than Glory had expected. She was sure that the stores had made a mistake in them, somewhere.

She went over them again and again, with the same result. She owed exactly six hundred dollars . . . two hundred of it for Christmas gifts! Glory kept the bills in the top drawer of her desk for two days.

On the third day she screwed up her courage to show them to Dick. She would take them to him at his office.

Miss Briggs would be there, of course. And Dick couldn't avoid raving about the bills in front of Miss Briggs!

Glory dressed herself with great care. On the way downtown she stopped at the florist's and bought an orchid for her coat. The windshield mirror told her that she was looking unusually lovely.

It would be much harder for Dick to quarrel with a beautiful wife who had run up $600 worth of bills, than with a plain unattractive one. It was nice to be beautiful. It made things so much simpler!

There was no one at Miss Briggs' desk in Dick's outer office. From the inner room came the sound of voices.

Glory sat down in Miss Briggs' swivel chair to wait.

The office was warm. After a while Glory took off her coat, and then her hat. The tight crown had left a red band on her forehead. She rubbed it gently with her finger tips.

"And I told him that Mother and I could take care of the two older children. But I guess it's going to be too much for Mother. She's not so very well."

Miss Briggs' voice!

And what was she talking about?

Glory listened.

Silence for a long moment. Then Dick's voice.

"Would it help you any if I gave you a little raise . . . say about $5 more a week?" he was saying. "Then you could hire a woman to help your mother out with the children."

"Of course, it would help . . . but I think you're paying me all I'm worth now, Mr. Gregory," Miss Briggs' soft voice answered. Her shadow appeared on the frosted glass pane of the door between the two offices.

Glory rose. She gathered her bills in one hand and opened the door.

Miss Briggs nodded at her, and slipped out.

"Hello, there. Rikky-Tikky-Tavy!" Glory greeted Dick cheerfully. She perched herself on the corner of Dick's desk. "You'll pardon me for breaking in on your interesting conversation with Miss Briggs . . . but I got tired waiting while she vamped some more salary from you!"

"Hush!" Dick said. He walked over and tried the handle of the door to see that it was shut tight. "She'll hear you."

"It's a good thing I caught you in this generous mood," Gloria went on with sarcasm in her voice, "because I'm calling on money matters, myself!"

She laid the bills down on Dick's desk. He didn't touch them.

"I want to explain to you about Miss Briggs," he said, taking both of his wife's hands in his. "A month or two ago her sister died, leaving three little children . . . and an invalid husband. Miss Briggs and her mother took two of the children to bring up. And Miss Briggs finds they can't do it on her present salary. . . . She's a good woman, Gloria . . . a fine woman!"

Glory laughed. She tossed back her bright hair.

"Altho moly women are good," she said. "It's only the pretty ones like May Seymour and me who run up bills and gad all day, and worry their husbands into an early grave, isn't it? . . . I know that's what you're thinking, so I'll say it for you!"

Dick picked up the bills.

"Gadzooks!" he exclaimed. Six hundred smackers!

He opened the top drawer of his desk and took out his check book.

"Take a look at the stubs in that!" he said abruptly. "They'll give you an idea of what were spending!"

Glory flung the little book down on the desk.

"Why should I look at your old checkbook?" she asked, hotly. "Your job is to support me . . . not to everlastingly tell me that you can't!"

To bright spots of color burned like danger signals in her cheeks.

"Other women's husbands buy them things that they want!" she stormed. "Are they so much smarter than you? Why is it that their wives can have clothes and things without fighting for them the way I have to? And then you give that Briggs woman a big raise the minute she asks you for it! . . . Oh, what's the use talking about it? There are the bills! And you'll have to pay them, that's all!"

Glory flung herself out of the office, slamming the door behind her so that its glass pane rattled. She picked up her coat and hat from Miss Briggs' desk, without so much as a look at her.

Out side in the corridor, Glory stopped and put them on. When she got into her car, she adjusted her hat before the windshield mirror. The orchid on her coat was wilted. Viciously Glory threw it down into the gutter.

She drove straight through the town out into the bare open country. Ahead of her on the lonely road a man was walking, head down against the high wind.

As Glory approached she saw that it was Stan Wayburn. She put on the brakes. The car slowed to a standstill. Just abreast of Stan. He looked up.

Glory opened the door of her car. "Well, of all things! To find you here just when I need you most! Get in!" she cried.

"Why do you have need of me, just now?" Stan asked when the car was under way again . . . slowly, this time.

Glory laughed gaily. "Oh, I don't know," she answered. "Unless it's that you're always a sort of mental co-tail to me . . . you pick me up."

"You picked me up, just now," Stan parried.

"I did. I never was so glad to see anybody in my life. I was feeling blue . . . But tell me, what were you doing, rambling around the country all by yourself?" the girl asked.

Stan's hand in its suede glove came down on the wheel over hers. "I was thinking of someone whom I loved . . . and lost," he said.

"It was your own fault that you lost her . . . that is, if you mean me," Glory answered. She could feel her heart thumping in her breast.

"You knew I was mad about you a year ago, and that I'd have married you like a shot . . . if you'd asked me," she went on with difficulty. "But you didn't ask me."

"I know," Stan's voice was very low. "But that doesn't make it any easier for me now. . . . It's impossible for me to realize that you're another man's wife!"

He turned in his seat and took the other man's wife in his arms. The little blue car slid to a standstill at the side of the lonely road.

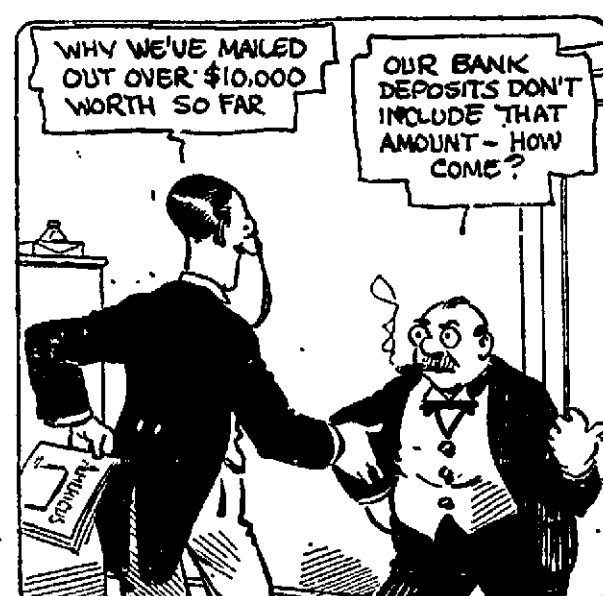

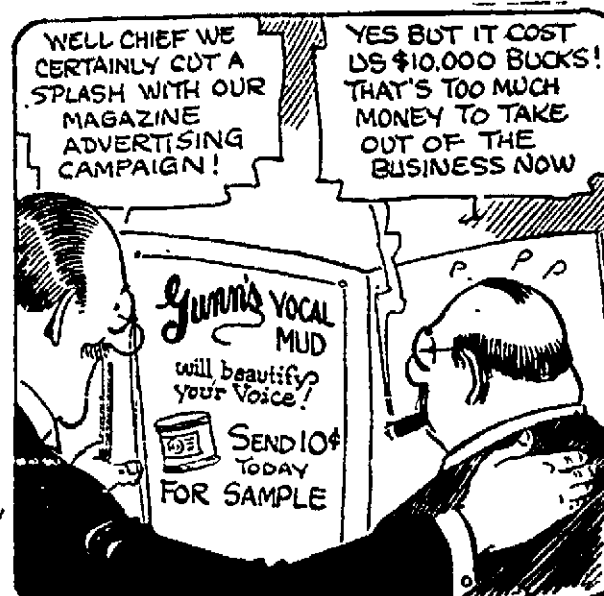

Glory closed her eyes. There was a new feeling in her. It was like being flooded with sweet, warm sunshine . . . on this wintry day. She felt, she thought, the way a flower must feel the moment it bursts into bloom.

"Kiss me," she said. "I love you, Stan."

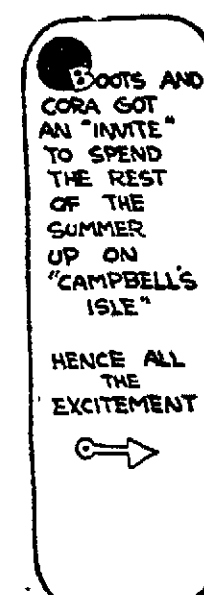

Wayburn kissed her. . . .

APPLETON NET SQUAD VISITS WAUSAU FOR MATCH

Triangle Stars Seek Revenge For Loss Of Tricity Tournament

Contests With Waupaca, Oshkosh and Menasha Also in Process of Negotiation

Appleton will seek revenge on Wausau Saturday for its recent defeat in the tricity tennis tournament here, when four Y. M. C. A. players from here will journey to Wausau. The Wausau team also plays under the banner, bearing the red triangle, and upon the dope bucket all over the place by taking the honors away from Appleton and Oshkosh here.

The tournament Saturday will comprise two doubles and four singles matches. F. W. Clippinger, Clement Lackey, Joseph Haentschel and C. L. Dyson will make the trip. They will leave here at 7 o'clock Saturday morning by automobile, and expect to arrive in Wausau at 11 o'clock. The matches will be played during the afternoon, and the team will return here the same evening.

STARTED IN MEET HERE

H. P. Frame, former activities secretary of the Y. M. C. A. here, is one of the leading players on the Wausau team. His mate, probably will be John Benton, J. C. Schmidt and A. W. Appel, the outstanding star of the tricity tourney here.

Arthur P. Jencks, physical director of the Appleton Y. M. C. A., who arranges the tournaments, is negotiating with the Waupaca Tennis association for a match on Saturday, August 1. A return match with the Oshkosh association and a match with Menasha also are in sight, but the dates for these have not yet been set.

BOYS PASS SWIM TEST AT Y. M. C. A.

Youths Now Prepare for Life-saving Examinations in "Y" Tank

Twelve boys who had been attending the Learn to Swim classes under the direction of Arthur P. Jencks, physical director at the Y. M. C. A. here, passed their swimming examinations recently and now are preparing to take examinations in life-saving methods. The test for swimmers includes the 100-yard swim, 50 yards on back, surface dive, recovering an object from 7 1/2 feet of water and the plan from 10 feet.

The boys who passed the tests were Hugh Mullen, Fred Marshall, James Neller, George Stewart, Volney Burgess, Vincent Burgess, Harold Gannon, Alvin, Woehler, Jack Schroeder, Charles Widsten, Gerald Richmond and Williams Foote.

The lifesaving tests, which comply with Red Cross requirements, are scheduled for a later date, to give the younger and older boys time to prepare. They will include most of the methods demonstrated by A. C. Moreau, Red Cross field man, on his recent stay here.

Falling in their attempt to upset the Triangles, the Footfitters were buried under a storm of hits Wednesday afternoon at Jones park and emerged from the fray at the short end of a 14 to 5 score. There were very few errors in the game, and most of the runs were scored on clean hits.

During the first three innings the Y. M. C. A. piled up 10 runs, meanwhile keeping the Shoemen scoreless. The Footfitters got their first tally in the fourth, and in that inning pulled a double play, basing to Cookson to Langenberg to spoil a couple of runs for the Triangles. The Shoemen started another rally in the sixth which resulted in three runs, and grabbed off another in the seventh, but were unable to overcome the early lead of their rivals.

The Triangles crashed out four hits in the final stanza for three runs to polish things off, and the game ended, 14 to 5.

Both teams were hitting hard, but the Triangles managed to bunch their hits and their fielding was better than the Shoemen's.

Dave's Dots And Dashes

Oshkosh normal and Lawrence college have agreed to resume hostilities on the gridiron instead of off. After a lapse of three years the grid matches of the two schools will meet on the new Lawrence field this fall. The game will open the Lawrence season on Oct. 3, and judging from the crowds Oshkosh used to draw here most of the 7,000 seats on the new field will be occupied.

There will be no battles with Big Ten colleges for Lawrence gridgers this fall. Coach Mark Catlin was more than satisfied with the showing of his players at Iowa last season, but the chance of winning that game was too small to warrant the risk of injuring his best players, he said. There is plenty of competition in the Little Eight and Little Five, Mark thinks, and the Blues will do all that's expected of them if they copy from their natural rivals.

Semi-pro baseball teams in the valley are carrying on a good work here this year. Some of the Appleton clubs are developing fine players, and the games are as close and exciting as any the State league ever produced. A few years of this kind of baseball will produce brand of the national pastime that should go over big.

The Legion team in the Lark league and the Post-Crescents in the city Twilight league appear to be having things all their own way. The Post-Crescents have lost but one game out of nine, while the Legionaires still have a clean slate. The Bankers in the City league got the surprise of their lives, however, when they dropped the first half of their doubleheader to the Chair Co. a few days ago. Upsets are likely to happen in twilight ball most any time, and the leaders can't afford to let up for a moment.

Appleton fight fans are likely to see some good scraps here this fall and winter. The Appleton Athletic club, recently incorporated, is looking for a professional watchmaker to attend to the arrangement of cards, and the new association will profit by the experiences of Elmer Johnston of the Midwest club, who brought classy fighters here only to loose good money on the bouts. The first card here under the new regime will be staged on Labor day.

LITTLE CHUTE VETS SEEK SUNDAY GAME

Little Chute American Legionnaires are looking for a game for Sunday afternoon with an amateur baseball team, preferably on the Little Chute diamond. They are willing to play anywhere to get a game, however, and application should be made to Ted Oudenhoven, who may be reached by telephone at 4-W.

The Little Chute Legion has won three out of five games so far this season. The veterans have beaten the strong Beyer Sentinels of Appleton, a Waupaca team and the Seymour club.

Cleveland—Pete Sarmento and Eddie Anderson, Wyoming panhandle, battled ten rounds, with Sarmento the victor by a slight margin.

DEMPEY IN BOUT FOR CHARITY

While the Dempseys were honeymooning across the pond, Champion Jack fought time to engage in a bout for charity at Brighton, England. Here he's depicted just before the opening gong changed. His opponent was a chap named Phil Scott, Harry Preston, the promoter, is the third man in the ring. The match attracted quite a bit of attention.

Marberry And Russell Great Relief Hurters

BY BILLY EVANS
Manager Stanley Harris of the world champions, is nothing if not original.

A manager can make or break his ball club in the handling of his pitching staff. In this respect Harris is decidedly original.

It is questionable if any major league pitching staff has ever been jockeyed as has been that of the Washington club. At the start of the season Harris evolved an unusual plan and has strictly adhered to it.

While unique as well as original, and in a sense rather drastic, the system that Harris has used with his pitchers has certainly got results. The system is an answer to the skeptics who doubted the ability of the veteran Washington pitching staff to stand up under the pennant strain.

Realizing that it was necessary to nurse his three veteran regulars, Johnson, Reuther and Coveleskie to get the best results from their efforts, he decided none of the trio should be used for relief duty.

EVERY FOURTH DAY

These three pitchers were to work every fourth day with Tom achary, almost in the vet class himself, making the other member of the regular quartet.

The fact that he had in Fred Marberry and Allan Russell, probably the two best relief pitchers in the majors, made possible the execution of so unusual a scheme.

At the start of the season Marberry and Russell were informed by Manager Harris that they would play the part of "game-savers." They would not be called upon to start any games, their role was simply to save them when any of the regulars faltered.

FOLLOWS ORIGINAL PLAN

Then to further strengthen his scheme, Manager Harris had the 40-year-old southpaw, Vean Gregg, able to start a game occasionally, also a whale at stepping into the relief breach and working three or four innings at top speed.

Perhaps there have been times when the Washington leader might have wanted to send in Johnson as a relief pitcher if only for the threat the name Walter Johnson carries.

At other times the cunning of Southpaw Dutch Reuther or Stanley Coveleskie may have appeared to Manager Harris, but he has never wavered from his set plan. Harris has the courage of his convictions, that's one reason he has been so successful.

Just to give you some idea of how the system has worked out it is necessary to dig up the statistics.

In the first 30 games played by Washington, Fred Marberry, champion relief pitcher of the majors, has taken part in 29. In no game has he worked more than four innings.

Allan Russell, while not called upon as often as Marberry, performed the role of relief pitcher 17 times, in the same period, in several games going as many as six innings.

The veteran Washington pitching staff is surprising the experts by the way it is holding up. But undoubtedly the way the staff is being nursed along by those two "game-savers," Marberry and Russell, is the answer.

WESBROOK OFFERED TILDEN REAL BATTLE

Walter Wesbrook, former University of Michigan star, gave the great Bill Tilden a strenuous argument in the national clay court tennis tourney held at St. Louis recently. Wesbrook carried the champion into five sets, the scores being 6-4, 2-6, 6-4, 2-6 and 6-0. It was the toughest competition "Big Bill" has faced this season.

MICKEY WALKER TAKES HAND IN LABOR DAY CARD

Welterweight Champ Persuades Harmon to Meet Pinky at Milwaukee

Milwaukee—Mickey Walker seldom delves into the business of matchmaking but it was no less than the welterweight champion of the world who made it possible for the Badger State Athletic association to land the Mitchell-Harmon bout—the rich flaccid plum it is offering at its all star card here on Aug. 14.

Walker considers Harmon and Mitchell as his two most dangerous rivals. He says Dave Shade can't make the weight, and close followers of the game know he is right. Milwaukee wants Walker to meet Pinky here Labor day, but he said that before he would sign for this bout that Mitchell would have to whip Harmon.

"But Harmon won't come west to box Mitchell," piped Walter W. Lange, the Milwaukee sportsman, who is back of Milwaukee's big outdoor arena, over the long distance phone. "Leave that to me," said Walker.

CALLED MANAGER

Now the story leaks out that Walker called Harmon's manager in New York and told him that if he wanted a chance to box him that he had better accept the Milwaukee date.

"Go out there and beat Mitchell and the club will put you on with me Labor day," Walker is reported to have told Harmon's business representative.

Inasmuch as there was not much chance of Harmon getting Walker into a New York ring he grabbed Walker's offer and closed with the Milwaukee promoter. Evidently he thinks he can whip Pinky, and rob the junior welter champion of a chance to meet the famous Mickey in a bout before his home town folks on Labor day.

Though Lange is still wrestling with his preliminaries he has signed Joey Cline, the flashy little Milwaukee featherweight for one of the preliminary events. Cline recently hurled a challenge at Johnny Dundee, the featherweight king, filing his debt with the New York State Boxing commission. Just whom he will box is a question but he told Lange to get either Peter Sarmiento, Earl McArthur, Phil Rosenberg or any other top notchers. Lange now is dickering with McArthur, and it is likely that the Iowa star will be signed. McArthur recently defeated the sensational Pete Sarmiento, scoring knockdowns over the great Filipino in two bouts. The club has promised Cline a chance on its Labor day card, and if he wins in his first start may get a chance at Dundee here in September.

SEALS PILE UP LEAD ON COAST

San Francisco Club Leads Pacific Loop by Comfortable Margin

San Francisco—The San Francisco Seals are leading the Pacific Coast league by a comfortable margin. They are now almost 100 points to the good.

Three club, Salt Lake, Seattle and Los Angeles are waging a merry battle for second place, with a fourth, Portland, not far behind. Oakland appears safely entrenched in sixth, leaving Sacramento and Vernon to fight it out for cellar honors.

Judging from performances to date, the Seals seem to be a pretty sure bet to cop the hunting. The team has been going along at a very even pace for quite some time and has given no outward indication of cracking.

True, the end of the chase is some distance ahead, but the Seals look good unless they show a complete form reversal within the coming weeks.

Wilkesbarre, Pa.—Dave Shade of California was awarded the judge's decision over Morris Schlaiffer of Omaha after ten rounds.

GIANTS FACING HARD TEST IN 4-GAME SERIES

Rain Spoils All Games in Both Big Leagues Wednesday Afternoon

By Associated Press
New York—The New York Giants Thursday took the road for a three weeks trip which is expected to offer the champions their most severe test of the season.

A four game series starting in Boston will be followed by a swing through the west, where the pace-makers last month lost their tight grip on first place after opening the campaign with a rush.

The Giants maintained their slight margin over Pirates Wednesday in another day of idleness throughout the circuit. Rain forced a postponement of all contests.

Pittsburg had a margin of four runs over the Phillies, 7 to 3, when a downpour drove both clubs from the diamond in the fifth.

American league teams, granted a holiday by the schedule Wednesday, are due back to the diamond Thursday. The Yankees, after a disastrous road trip, entertain the leading Washington Senators, while the Red Sox invaded Philadelphia.

through a hot summer — there is nothing cooler and nothing finer to wear than underwear made of ART SILK. ART SILK underwear is very light in weight,—airy and most comfortable,—as cool as a northern breeze. It's what you have been wanting — it's what you'll always want—once you wear it. Get yours now and laugh at the next hot wave.

STATE LOOP WILL PLAY IN MIDWEEK

All Teams With Exception of Fairies Will Clash on Wednesday

Racine—At the meeting of the managers of the Wisconsin State league held Tuesday morning at Kenosha it was decided to promote mid-week baseball. From now on all teams in the league with the exception of the Fairies will play on Wednesday afternoon each week. The Fairies will have no games during the week but will make up the deficit by playing a double header each Sunday for the remainder of the season.

Manager A. J. Chubb of the Fairies declared at the Kenosha confab that he was not opposed to midweek baseball as had been reported but that most of the Beloit players held responsible positions in the Fairbanks-Morse and company shops here and for that reason it would be impossible to hold games here during working hours.

A new schedule to embrace the additional contests will be drafted and will go into effect next week.

TORONTO IS TRYING TWILIGHT BASEBALL

Toronto of the International league is giving twilight ball a swing. The games are now being called at 6:15. Whether or not the stunt will prove better in a financial way remains to be seen.

Post-Crescent Attains Record In Circulation

No. 6,552; Manitowoc, (Wis.) Herald News, 6,075; Times, 4,724.

All of these cities are in the same class as Appleton. Some of them have a slightly larger population and most of them are about the same. It will be noted that none of them approach the circulation of The Post-Crescent.

A compilation of all the newspapers printed in cities of from 20,000 to 25,000 would be a thesaurus but a study revealed that the Post-Crescent's circulation compares very favorably with the distribution of papers printed in the larger cities. All the population figures given are the census of 1920 which gives Appleton a population of 19,561.

Circulation figures of newspapers printed in a number of well-known cities, all larger than Appleton, as compared with the Post-Crescent, may be interesting. Appleton, Wis. Population 19,561. START STRUGGLE IN COURT OVER CITY'S ZONE LAW

Court Hears Arguments for Injunction Against Addition to Star Bakery

Skirmishes in the battle being waged by neighbors of Charles E. Goettlicher, owner of the Star bakery, 112 E. North-st., to prevent him from building an addition to his bakehouse, were started Thursday morning before Judge Edgar W. Werner in circuit court. Appearing from the decision of the city zoning appeal board which favored Goettlicher, the petitioners carried the case into court. Judge Werner declared the opening session informal and carried on a three-cornered discussion with Paul V. Carr, attorney for the defendant, and F. F. Wheeler, attorney for the petitioners in an effort to settle the question.

Two weeks ago Goettlicher obtained permission to build an addition to his shop. Twenty-four property owners of the neighborhood voiced a protest at zoning board hearing, claiming that an addition would violate the zoning ordinance and also would be a nuisance to the neighborhood. Efforts were made to buy Mr. Goettlicher out. At a meeting of the zoning board of appeals it was decided that Goettlicher's permit could not be revoked as no objectors had appeared at the regular hearing. Property owners claimed they did not see the notices of the hearing.

A discussion of the interpretation of the city zoning ordinance, the powers of the zoning board in the case and state sanitary and fire laws occupied most of the morning court session.

must raise rates would be committing political suicide. So it is seriously being considered how low the rates shall be placed consistent with safety for the years of the present administration remaining before the 1928 elections. Whatever the treasury decides is the margin of safety will be accepted by the president and then as a basis for tax reduction will be applied to the retirement of the public debt.

WALKS CALMLY OUT OF CLUTCHES OF POLICEMEN

Arthur H. Hoffman of This City Succeeds in New Ruse in Milwaukee Court

Working a ruse new to the police department, Arthur H. Hoffman, 32, of this city, escaped from the "bull pen" at the district court in Milwaukee Tuesday, according to notice received by the police here. The Appleton defendant is asked to assist in his recapture, on the supposition that he might return here.

Hoffman had been held by Milwaukee police since July 3 on a charge of passing worthless checks. He is well known to the Appleton police, as he was held once by them in connection with a Waupaca burglary case and also was mentioned in other cases which came to the attention of Chief George T. Prim. He was living with his parents on N. Superior-st. the last the police knew of him here.

"LAWYER" VISITED HIM

After Hoffman's preliminary trial at Milwaukee, where he appeared without a lawyer, he was bound over the municipal court, and deputies were detaining him in the bull pen to be taken back to the county jail. While he was waiting there, a man, claiming to be a lawyer retained for Hoffman, appeared, and asked to see him. The deputies permitted the lawyer to take Hoffman to a side room to talk to him, as is customary. When it came time to take the prisoners back to the jail, however, Hoffman was missing, and a search was started at once.

WALKED OUT

It was found that he had walked out of the room with the alleged lawyer, and gone calmly down the elevator, engaged a taxi in front of the city hall, and ordered the driver to take him to New Butler.

The taxi driver was found and questioned. He said Hoffman had discharged him near the roundhouse at New Butler and started walking up the railroad tracks, heading north. Deputy sheriffs raced to New Butler and made a thorough search of the countryside, but failed to find Hoffman.

RESTAURANT MAN HITS PARTNER WITH CLEAVER

In that he had a cousin at Kimberly. The cousin was located with the assistance of Richard Caesar, village marshal. He declared Gostas had not visited there.

Gostas, according to his story told the police, took the side walk after leaving the restaurant, walked through City park and started for Combined Locks. He then decided to go to Kimberly instead and on his arrival was informed by his cousin that the police had sought him there. He was advised to give himself up before the officers found him. He obtained a ride back to Appleton and walked into the station and surrendered at about 11:30. He was questioned concerning the quarrel and the attack and then was locked in a cell, where he must remain until bonds can be provided for his release. The cleaver he used to strike the blows is in possession of the police.

Mrs. Williams took charge of the restaurant after the affair was over and kept it running until the late night hours. It was not reopened Thursday morning, however, pending the outcome of the disagreement.

EDITOR PIERCE BURNS BLAINE IN HOT EDITORIAL

Publisher of Wisconsin Farmer
Answers Governor's
Epithet

Suggesting that an inquiry be held in Wisconsin to determine whether the governor ascended or descended from an ass, Dane Pierce, editor of the Wisconsin Farmer, replied to Governor Blaine's assertion that he was a liar with one of the most caustic editorials ever penned. Mr. Pierce in an editorial in a recent issue of the Wisconsin Farmer, attacked Blaine's tax policy and the governor replied by saying that Pierce was not telling the truth. Pierce, a staunch supporter of Senator LaFollette, replied with the following editorial.

"To call a man a liar is the first and last resort of a pusillanimous person whose cause is wrong, whose vocabulary is deficient, and whose reasoning powers, if he ever had any, have completely waned. It betokens weakness of mind, of cause and of sense. It is the first and the last despairing gasp of the bully who finds his despotic rule challenged and who does not know enough to make any other answer. Among gentlemen the man who can answer argument only by calling his opponent a liar is recognized as no gentleman. All languages are capable of being used in refined argument. The retort courteous, as well as the logical, legal argument is possible to all tongues. Only those unfortunately or wilfully deficient in good taste and sound senses are forced to resort to the billingsgate of the bully."

HIS GREATEST COMPLIMENT
"In my time I have had not a few honors bestowed upon me. I have had the president of the United States place his hand upon my shoulder and tell me that I was a big help to his administration—and he a stalwart republican president. I have had cabinet members, senators and men in high places, in many endeavors and walks of life, say kindly things to me. I have received these words of praise from all, but the greatest compliment that has been paid to me is to be called a liar by John Blaine, governor of Wisconsin. Realizing the source, I appreciate the insult. To be a liar in the eyes of John Blaine is to be a decent man in the eyes of the world." I join the poet in saying:

Dare to be true, nothing can need a lie.
A fault which needs it most, grows two thereby.
"In return for being called a liar I am going to give John Blaine a great favor. I am going to give him something that all his money could not possibly buy. I am going to give him space to bring something that he wrote—or signed at least. Now, in the ordinary course of events, I would not open my columns to a man like John Blaine, using such language as he does. But he calls me a liar."

"LIKE COWARDLY BULLY"
"The governor writes as one born to the pen, a gentleman whose every instinct is chivalrous. He challenges me to a moral duel of words, and before I received the letter he gives it to the newspapers of Wisconsin to print before I can even open it. It is rather reminiscent of a cowardly bully who throws a brickbat and then runs for his life. Be that as it may, the governor indicts me, convicts me and sentences me—all before I have time to say a word, even so much as an 'Oh' or an 'Ah.' But what is the sentence? A lifetime association with man of decency and honor, and a dissatisfaction for an equal time from the company of John Blaine. What a welcome verdict. What a sweet riddance!"

"For trying to save the taxpayers of Wisconsin a mere trifle amounting to only $5,000,000 I am a 'liar.' If the sum saved in taxes had been $25,000,000 I wonder if the governor would not have made the 'liar' a little stronger by the use of two expletives which qualify but do not stultify—if the governor can understand such words. How great is the official recognition of those who try to check inefficiency and extravagance and save the money of the taxpayers of Wisconsin! And yet what an honor or to have the enmity of such a man! Surely, we are advertised by our hating enemies as well as by our loving friends!"

CITES LAFOLLETTE'S TRIBUTE
"It would be a waste of space and an imposition upon the patience of my readers to pay any more attention to such a man as Gov. Blaine and such a letter as he has written. I own property in Wisconsin. I pay taxes thereon. Naturally, I have an interest in Wisconsin public affairs. I would be condemned by decent folks, who do not care to know the governor, if I did not do so. As to the effect of any advertisement upon any editorial policy, I respect."

DEAN OF CLOWNS LONGS FOR DAYS OF OLD WHEN CIRCUS HAD BUT ONE RING

Jules Turnour, dean of a hundred clowns with the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey circus, is of that "old school" who depend upon the art of pantomime. He is coming here with the Big Show Wednesday, July 23rd.

Though Jules smiles as broadly as any when "Buck" Baker comes down the hippodrome track in his newly invented "Shimmy Lizard" Ford, he doesn't entirely approve of machine-made chuckles. This season the "world's worst band" of twenty clown musicians goes marching across the rings on stilts. The smallest player walks upon sticks twelve inches high. Then the stilt-rangers upward to those twenty-foot "peg legs" worn by the leanest of Disgelly Dams. But though this is a new stunt it is not quite to Jules' taste. He has been a "big top" jester for fifty years. He craves the old days and the old ways.

"It's a changing world of the white tops," says the veteran jester. "It seems only yesterday that I played in a one ring show. Then came two, then three and this year they have five rings in all. Time was when a clown such as myself, a rider and the ring master entertained the audience for full twenty minutes. Now we have more than seventy equestrians. As for horses—there are a hundred and fifty in one number, each ridden by an expert cowboy or horseman. Why I could hardly believe my own ears when I heard such a vast act had been prepared. Even now I can hardly trust my eyes when I see it. Still, beautiful ladies in fine feathers are not the only things, even when they ride upon fine steeds. For we make the children laugh, we old timers do. And as long as the little ones stand by us, I guess there will be place for an old jester even though he has passed his seventieth milestone."

fully refer the governor to the words written by the late Senator Robert M. LaFollette, my father's personal friend and mine, in La Follette's Magazine of January, 1924, under the title, "Dante M. Pierce—Not for Sale," the entire article—copied a page of the senator's publication and was written by himself. I quote simply one of the senator's statements in regard to the fulfillment, the impossibility, of any one attempting to buy myself or my publication: "With his engaging smile he served notice upon all that he would continue to sell advertising space, without the sale of conscience and honor."

"If the governor is able to understand English, his vile insinuation is answered by these brave words of a man whose shoestrings he is not worthy of unlacing."

"Down in Tennessee these days some of the greatest lawyers in the United States are trying to find out whether men ascended or descended from a monkey. A similar inquiry in Wisconsin as to whether the governor ascended or descended from an ass might be interesting."

AFTER BABY WAS BORN

Mrs. Miles Was Miserable a Long Time—Owes Final Recovery to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Dover, Ohio.—"After my last baby was born I was up and around again, but I was sickly all the time and did not know how to get my work done. I had washed a heavy carpet and I think that was the cause of my troubles. I went to several doctors, but their medicines did not do me any good. I asked what the trouble was, for I could hardly walk and always had such pains in my left side and then in my right side. He told me I had inflammation that caused it. I had one of your text-books and was reading it, and I thought I would take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. After four days of taking it I began to feel better, so I took three bottles without missing a dose. That helped me more than any other medicine I had yet taken and I always have it handy now. It surely did put me on my feet again."—Mrs. JAMES MILES, 419 Cherry Street, Dover, Ohio.

You must believe that a medicine that helps other women will help you. For sale by druggists everywhere.

"I was trying to save the taxpayers of Wisconsin a mere trifle amounting to only $5,000,000 I am a 'liar.' If the sum saved in taxes had been $25,000,000 I wonder if the governor would not have made the 'liar' a little stronger by the use of two expletives which qualify but do not stultify—if the governor can understand such words. How great is the official recognition of those who try to check inefficiency and extravagance and save the money of the taxpayers of Wisconsin! And yet what an honor or to have the enmity of such a man! Surely, we are advertised by our hating enemies as well as by our loving friends!"

"It would be a waste of space and an imposition upon the patience of my readers to pay any more attention to such a man as Gov. Blaine and such a letter as he has written. I own property in Wisconsin. I pay taxes thereon. Naturally, I have an interest in Wisconsin public affairs. I would be condemned by decent folks, who do not care to know the governor, if I did not do so. As to the effect of any advertisement upon any editorial policy, I respect."

PETTERS PETTING IN CAR PITCHED IN DITCH

A "petting bee" on a side road just off highway 151, near Butte des Morts Golf course was rudely interrupted about 10 o'clock Tuesday evening when the coupe in which the "contestants" were parked was bumped off into the ditch by a big car going north. Lights on the coupe had been switched off to lend a more romantic air to the "petting party" and this fact was probably responsible for the mix up. John Freude, Spencer road, happened along shortly after the coupe had taken to the ditch. He heard a heated argument going on between the drivers of the two cars, but didn't stay to see the fist fight which he felt would follow if the argument got any hotter. He didn't even stop to learn the names of the three star characters in the roadside drama, but left them to settle the argument as best they could. The coupe suffered a smashed back wheel and a badly bent fender.

Railroad Freight Rates—

It is generally conceded that if the country is to have private ownership of railroads they must be supported by the shipping and traveling public.

The returns from existing rates during the past few years have not been adequate to pay a fair return or even any return to the owners of many railroads. This is especially true of the roads of the northwest, of which the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway, now in receivership, is an important one.

An application for increased freight rates on western roads is now pending before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The Receivers of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway have proposed and will advocate before the State and Interstate commissions a new plan of rate making by which a very small increase in freight rates on western railroads can be so distributed among them that the maximum benefits can be given to weaker lines without unduly favoring the strong, prosperous roads.

The plan involves segregating the money produced by a small increase in freight rates on all western railroads and putting it into a common fund or pool and distributing the money to all the roads by which it is earned in the ratio that each road failed during the preceding year to earn the 5 1/2% on its property investment which the Transportation Act of 1920 allows.

If this plan had been in effect during 1924 the Milwaukee Road would probably have avoided a Receivership.

The Receivers of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway have not been able to secure the support of the other western railroads to their plan and, therefore, have decided to advocate the plan independently for the benefit of this property and as the plan which best solves the railroad problem with the lowest burden to shippers. For this purpose the Receivers of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway have engaged former Secretary of State, Mr. Charles E. Hughes, to assist them in presenting the plan and urging its adoption. Full particulars about the plan can be obtained from any agent of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway or from the undersigned.
